"Arjuna, the faith of each is shaped to own mental constitution, Faith constitution the very being of man, therefore, whate the cause of his faith, that verily he is"

the nature of his faith, that verily he is "

Therefore one should try to acquire tr faith.

In whatever name or form of God ye repose your faith, you will undoubtedly ! considered to have faith in Him; for all nam and forms are His. You may repose faith in an follow any religion which appeals to you, at Rsi. Mahatma or God-inspired man who is worth of credence to you. All that is needed is Studdt or faith. God, religion and life after death, etc. or things which can only be believed for th main part. It is after repeated efforts and har unceasing struggle that one obtains a direct perception of these truths. For the realization of these higher truths one cannot do withou reposing faith in some one, at least, in the begin ning. If one does not do so, he is sure to turn an atheist and deviate from the path of blessed ness. Nay, he will never enter the path of God realization and will go down in the scale of

If you do not believe in any particular religion, scripture or the utterances of saints and spiritual evolution.

sages of old, you should certainly believe at least in the teachings of Srimad Bhagavadgid. For the teachings of the Gus are in harmony with the teachings of almost all the different religions of the world.

If you do not believe even in the Gid, you should repose faith in God according as you have conceived of Him and, surrendering yourself to Him, apply yourself in right earnest to the work of Self-realization Supposing you doubt even the existence of God, you should select the best man of the age and arm yourself with sufficient courage to follow in his footsteps.

If you cannot repose faith in any saint or great man of the present age, you should pause to consider whether there is no one superior to you in the whole world so far as the knowledge of the path of blessedness is concerned. If you allege that such men do exist but you have not yet come across any such person, it is your duty to find them out: or, if you think that there are many people superior to you but people who ean ably instruct you in the Law of Higher Life are few and far between and those few who exist are not easily accessible to men lacking in faith and cannot be recognized even if we happen to meet such persons, having not the eyes wherewith to recognize them, it is essential for you to consider whether the sort of life you are leading is conducive to your true fortitude, forgiveness composure of mind, content ment, turthfulness and compassion, should practise Japa, austerity, meditation and service, and give up vices like sloth, mendacity, sensuality, duplicity, thieving and adultery. Before undertaking any work one should carefully consider whether what he is going to do is really conducive of good to him and correct at once whatever defect appears to him therein. Human birth is rare gift. Even laes of rupces cannot prolong one's life even by a minute.

Such n valuable life should never be wasted in sleep, lethargy, idle pursuits and indolence, Any-well-being. If you are satisfied with what you are doing, you should at least exert yourself morand more for your advancement day by day. You should cultivate virtues like serenity, self-control one who passes his time listifessly is bound to come to grief. A Hindi poet has beautifully said:—

"One who takes up any work without due consideration of its pros and cons surely comes to grief. Not only does he spoil the work and become an object of Lunghter in the eyes of the world, but he loses his peace of mind, and the pleasures of the world lose all charm for him. Giradhar, the poet, says that the laws of Karma are inexorable. A work done without due consideration pricks the heart like a spike."

काम दियारे माएनी जममें होत हैंसाय !! जममें होत हैंसाय चित्रमें चैन न पाने ! काम पान सनमान राग रेंग मन शह माने !! One should, therefore, take particular care to employ his time to the best advantage according to his discretion, so that he may not have to repent afterwards. One has to pay a very high price for obtaining human birth. One has to do so many things in the course of one single life, which is very short. Heoce one should wake up and be wise enough to devote the rest of his life to works conducive to one's highest good.

Il one does not engage according to his light and knowledge io works which are heneficial to him, here as well as herafter, it will be nothing abort of height of folly, indolence and sloth on his part. He who does not withdraw his mind from idle pursuits lethargy and enjoyment of sense-objects and put it on the right track and proceed along the downward path, is his own enemy The Sruti says—

इंद चैदवेदीद्ध सायमस्ति न भेदिहावेदीन्महती विजिष्टः। भूतेपु भूतेपु विचित्व भीदाः ग्रेत्वासाष्टीकाद्द्यता सवन्ति॥

"It is well and good if one realises Him in this very life. If, on the contrary, one fails to know Him in this life, he will be a greater loser. Men of strong determination who seek for the Lord in every creature attain immortality on casting of this body."

One has to tread this path of self-evolution by himself, no one else can do it for him.

> नव गिरंबर कविराय कर्म गति दरत म दारे । सारकत है जिस माहि करे जो विना विचारे ॥

Therefore, the only wise thing for him is that he should he vigilant every moment of his life and, exercising self-control, should devote himself whole-heartedly to practices which insure his permanent good here as well as hereafter Idle pursuits, letharge, enjoyment of sense-objects and immoral practices might to be given up as the greatest stumbling-blocks on this path. Smil exhorts as follows:—

उत्तिष्टत जामत प्राप्य चराविशोघत । श्चारस्य घारा निश्चिता दुरस्यया दुर्गं पथस्तरस्वशे पदन्ति ॥

receive instruction from them. The wise say that the road is difficult to tread; if is like treading on the sharp edge of a ragor."

But, because the road is very difficult, one should not lose heart. By fixing one's mind on God, one can easily surmount all difficulties through His grace—

'मश्चित्तः सर्वंदुर्गीण मरप्रलादासरिष्यसि ।'

The Lord further says:-

दैशी होया गुणमयी सम साथा दुरस्यया। सामेव ये प्रपचन्ते सावामेतां तरन्ति ते॥

(Gita, VIL 14)

"For this wonderful illusion of Miue consisting of the three Guuas (modes of Nature) is extremely difficult to get over, those, however, who take refuge in Me alone cross it "

To visualize the Lord at all places and in all things, constant unfailing remembrance of God and acting according to His commandments constitute self-surrender to God. This is also called one-pointed and exclusive devotion (अनन्य प्राचित) to the Lord.

Therefore to take refuge in God is the foremost duty of those who believe in God. One who completely surrenders bimself to Him can never perpetrate anything which is opposed to the will of the Lord. He attains a state which is heyond all fear, be as completely rad of grief and infatuation. He enjoys everlasting peace which nothing can disturb and his bliss knows no bounds. This ineffable mood of his cannot be understood or explained to others through example. words or signs. When even those who have attained such a state are unable to describe at. bow can others do it? Mind and speech have no access there. It can only be experienced through one's purified intellect. This is what the Vedas and Sastras save-

> एप सर्वेषु मृतेषु यूकोऽप्रमा न प्रकाशते । इत्रयते स्वादया युद्ध्या सूक्ष्मया स्वादर्शिभः ॥ (Kathobanead. 1. in. 12)

"Concealed in all beings, this Atma does not manifest itself. It can only be perceived, through the pointed and subtle intellect, by men of subtle eight."

The Lord Himself says-

तुलमान्तिकं वनद् दुदिसाहस्तित्वस्। वेति वश्च ने वैशवं स्थितकृति तारतः व to carry out the same, and what are the obstacle on account of which he cannot make the best effort, inspite of his desire to do the same.

Man's first and foremest duty is to cleve bis Sell. The Lord says, "Man should eleve himself by the Self, he should not cause the s to go down." It should be, therefore, consider what is the selfs elevation, and wherein lies degradation.

Gradual increase, in the present and In t future, within oneself, of (spiritual) Knowled (supreme) Happiness, (unbroken) Peace and spirit of impartial justice is elevation of the s and contrary to this, turning of the mind towa unorance, error, unrest and injustice, is degradat of the self.' Forming constantly the habit of s examination, man should devote himself to effort at self-elevation and restrain himself fr acts that lead to degradation. In this wo association is the primary cause of soul's elevation or degradation. Association w him who has already elevated himself or established in the path of spiritual elevation helpful to the soul's elevation; and associat with him who is already fallen, or is gradu advancing towards a spiritual fall, fosters soul's degradation. Therefore, it is proper

He who is free from selfishness arroyance hypocrisy and anger, who does not seek honour. prestige or personal worship, whose conduct is exceptionally pure, whose sight and words lead to the advancement of love for, and faith in, God, bring peace to the heart, and developing one's belief in God, the other world and spiritually pure scriptures incline one towards blessedness, should be regarded a high and elevated soul, Holding as a model the flawless conducts of such high, saintly souls, whether dead or alive, one should imitate them, and carry out their behests, and regulate one's life by carrying out what appears to one's intellect as good and conducive to bliss and peace The Law-giver Manu says .-

> वेदः स्मृतिः सदानारः स्वस्य च विषयामनः । मृत्रमञ्जीनेथं आदुः साक्षान्त्रमेख स्वसम्य ॥ (१८.12)

"The Vedas, Smrtis, conduct of saintly souls, and action which brings satisfaction to the heart-these four are said to be direct marks of Dherma" for those who do not believe in our Srutis and Smṛtis? Iso to not believe in our Srutis and Smṛtis? Iso the neessary for all to have faith in the Srutis and Smṛtis? Being a Hindu, though the Srutis and Smṛtis? Being a Hindu, though the Srutis and Smṛtis are extremely dear to me, and I am partial to them, it can never be reasonable if I assert that there can be no standard of right conduct besides the innenctions of the Srutis and Smrtis. An impartial consideration of the duty of man as a whole produces the conviction that the Lord and ruler of this universe is one and the same God. Almost all religious sects of the world, and schools of thought, cultivate faith in Him alone, in one form or another, and seek to draw their followers towards Him. Whatever books those sects and schools of thought regard as their holy scriptures, for them those very books are the scriptures, or authoritative books of their religion. For a person following a particular religion, adberence to all practices followed and advocated by the best ancients famous for their right conduct according to that religion, would be equivalent to following the scriptures. Such injunctions alone of the scriptures should be actually practised as appear good and beneficial to the intellect, when put to the crucible of reason. A man may be a good man, but we should imitate only such of his conduct as appear to our reasoning as best and highest Such of his conduct as appear to us to be injurious unworthy and of doubtful value should not be accepted as the standard of right conduct.

In case the association of a person, who has either already attained blessedness or has advanced towards blessedness, is not gained, or in case the heart recoils from the belief that anyone has attained to that state, one should pray to God for gaining the association of such a saintly soul, in the following strain,—"O Lord.

O Supreme Soul, O my Master, graciously brinne in contact with such great souls as armerged in Your Love with a sincer and devou heart." If God is approached repeatedly wit such prayer, through His grace the practican will surely gain contact with a saint favourabl to his sentiments.

Here, again, the question arises that he ambe alone who has faith in God can offer prayer to God. It is possible for believers in God thave faith in saints and in the scriptures. But what is the duty of one who believes neither if God, nor in life after death, nor in the scriptures nor in the saints?

The answer to this is that though the condition of such people is most deplorable nevertheless they also can follow the means of their souls' elevation according to their light Such people should seek contact with persons who appear to their reason as superior to them. In this world, both among confirmed rdiots and the wisest of men, it is almost generally helieved that there are people who are superior to them as well as inferior. Therefore, holding him as ideal, who appears to one's reason as noble, high, discriminative, pure-hearted, possessed of right conducts well as learning, one should disinterestedly initiate his good actions. If due to foolishness, conceit or any other reason, he fails altogether to regard anyone as superior to him, he should carefully put everything to the test of reason, d after proper discrimination what appears to smind as conducive to blessedness, peace, felicity, bilic good, justice and righteousness should tolebeartedly accept the same, and act accordingly rowing away all considerations of self-interest.

In almost all men there are primarily two pes of impulses-one leading upwards, that is nding to elevate the soul, and the second leadg downwards, that is tending to bring about e fall of the soul Between these two impulses, e one of discrimination, which beloing forward ne's progress towards good induces one to devote neself to good action, leads upwards, and that upulse of indiscretion which through the ego te, the repository of pairs of opposites like ttraction and repulsion, drives one to commit w, questionable acts, leads downwards. Through iscrimination, man wants to elevate himself; but be impulse of indiscretion forcibly dragging him way from the path of good, pushes him along be path of evil. That is why Arjuna put this uestion to the Lord --

> भव केन प्रयुक्तीऽयं पाएं चरति प्रपः। भनिरउचि वार्णीय बलादिन नियोजितः॥

> > (Guā, IIL 36)

"Now impelled by what, Krena, does this man commit sineven involuntarily, as though driven by force,"

In reply to this, the Lord said -

काम एप कोच एप रत्नोगुणसमुद्रतः। महारानो महापापमा विद्वारीनमिह वैरिणम् ॥

"It is desire, it is wrath, begotten of the element of Rajas, insatiable and gross wicked; know this to be the enemy

Proceeding further the Lord pointed of that it is enemies like Desire, etc. horn a tatachment in the form of attraction, which has extended their sovereignty over man's senses an

this case."

and the mind from their bondage, evil impulse like Desire should be eradicated. It is with the power of the practicant to do this. Thit why the Lord said—— 'इन्द्रियाणि प्राण्याहरिन्द्रियेण्यः पूरं मनः।

ंदृन्द्रियाणि पराण्यादुरिन्द्रियेभ्यः एरं मतः। मनसस्तु परा बुद्धिणं बुद्धेः परतस्तु सः॥ एवं बुद्धेः परं बुद्ध्या संस्थयत्माननासमना। जिद्दे शर्मुं महाबादो कामस्य दरासदम्॥

the mind. Therefore, first, releasing the sense

"The senses are said to be greater than the body; but greater than the senses are the mind Greater than the mind is the intellect and what is greater than the intellect is he (the left). Thus Atjuna, knowing that which is and what is greater than the intellect is he (the self! Thue Atjuna. knowing that which is higher than the intellect and subdning the mind by reason, kill this enemy in the form of Desire, that is hard to overcome.

According to these words of the Lord, man should attempt with greater and greater vigour o redeem bis soul. Subdaing the impulses of vil associated with the ego, consisting of pairs of opposites like attraction and repulsion, when he conscience or Discrimination is awakened, verything is likely to be set right. This is performance of duty.

Now, it should be considered that although almost all men attempt to elevate themselves necording to their light, their attempt does not meet with success. What are the principal obstact which always hinder them from advancing along the path of progress? The answer to this is that due to evil association and evil habits they have raised so many obstacles, hence they cannot keep along the path of true prozers The following are the principal among them—

(1) Attachment—The tenduncy of the mind which draws one to enoyoment to worldy things like food and dress and other objects of luxury, as sweet to the senses, is called Attachment. Man understands through reasoning that adultery is an evil, a sin It is impurious to hoth the body and intellect to use a particular article of consumption. But Desire in the form of sense of enloyment, clonding his Discrimination, drags him to the commission of those evils. Being overcome by this Attachment, the senses foreibly drag the mind and drown it in the occan of world!

Discrimination. Action taken under t impulse of Anger brings terrible suffers in Inture (3) Greed-Men of discrimination ha described Greed as the begetter of si

When Greed is roused, thoughts propriety and impropriety, truth as untruth cannot stand. To deceive as cheat others, to commit the most reprehensible acts for the sake of money become almost like a habit with the min of Greed It is most difficult for a man of Greed, who regards accumulation of wealth as the object of life, to carn virtue Therefore, depending on God and the law of Prarabdha (action which has begun to bear fruit), Greed should be renounced Lust, Anger and Greed these three have been described in the GNA as doors leading to hell, destructive of the soul (XVI 21).

(4) Fear-When this appears man gives up fortitude and presently takes to sin. He who leadrestly proceeds along the path of enquiry and does not give up fortitude in the face of even the greatest of difficulties, does never suffer a fall, whether here or elsewhere. If God is visualized everywhere, then, fear can never exist, but through the practice of reasoning, holding fast to fortitude at heart, or even through recourse to herossm and contage, man can be fearless. Realizing this one should always try to remain fearless. Unnerved by fear, one should never yield to wrong.

(5) Hypocriss - Concealing the evils in oneself, to show, out of greed, fear or ignorance, in the interest of wealth, honour or prestige, good points which one actually does not possess, or to make special and impressive exhibition of one's small merits, is called hypocrisy. This evil is a rreat obstacle in the path of biessedness. Of all the principal causes which lead to a practicant's downfall, this is particularly harmful.

Evils like untruth, deceit, ipjustice, e'remain naturally bidden within t womb of Hypocrisy. A hypocrite fethat he is cheating others, but as matter of fact, he is himself cheate Even meritorious deeds like performan of sacrifice, charities, etc., done in hypocritical spirit, get exhausted; m only so, in particular cases, the doearns sin, justead of virtue. Therefor a discerning man should earefully sav himself from this evil. The present-da world is widely injected with this evi It has become difficult to find a singl person even among thousands, wh may be totally free from the evil o Hypocrisy.

The five evils mentioned above are the primary defects. But besides them we have formed many habits as compel us to fall from the path of good. Though perceived by reason as directly harmful, we do not want to give them up, because they appear pleasant in the beginning due to our insensibility For instance— (a) Depending on another's support, leading

- (a) Depending on another's support, leading the like of a pressite:—He who is not self-dependent, who lives upon the earnings of another, or lives under another's protection, can never elevate his thoughts. He who suffers from greed of wealth cannot easily devote himself to spiritual discipline or the work of selfelevation. Trerefure. mın attempt, as far as possible, to eut down his needs. He should bring down his expenditure, and spend only as much as is necessary for carrying on life If he has a surplus of money, he should utilize it in the service of the poor, the indigent and the cripple.

- (d) Indolence, lack of diligence or wilful neglect of duty—Postponing the day's work for the morrow, and doing work in a ball-hearted manner only, these are extremely bad habits. For one who is subject to these habits, it is extremely difficult to rise, whether in this world or the next. Time is short, the path is long. Before death comes, and the body becomes a pery to ailments, one should earnestly devote oneself to the performance of one's duty. The moment an opportunity presents listell for a virtuous deed, one should be prepared immediately to perform it withenthussasm.
 - (e) Disobedience to parents and other elders—This habit is on, the increase nowadays, specially amons the cheated Continuation of disobedience to the loving behests of experienced clers is a great obstacle in starting one's march in the path of blessedness. Through the blessings of elders, longevity, learning, fame and strength are increased Front their words of advice laden with the wisdom of experience, we come to discern the way of providing for the means of life. Therefore, as far as possible one should be diligent in carrying out the wishes of the cliers.

(g) Seeking honour or social prestize, and welcoming the same when received.—
Like the tickle of the ringworm, it is an extremely agreeable diveys, which though appearing pleasant in the beginning is very painful in the end. Nowadays, in exchange for the insignificant value of honour and fame, the greatest of our virtues and deeds have all heen disposed of. Whatever good deeds man performs, he throws them away by surrendering them to his desire for name and fame. Though he who does good deeds even for honour, fame and prestige is better than the indolent, worldly-minded person, nevertheless in the case of seekers of spiritual good, honour and fame do the greatest mary. Practices which may bring them attainment of the Paramatina (God), the Gem of incalculable value, they lose in exchange for name and fame. Desire for name and fame is a terrible deep-seated, contagious disease which remains hidden within the immost recesses of the beart. It is often found even in those who renounce wife, children and riches. Man cannot easily free himself wholly from this disease although he may realize by reason that it is an evil. The germ of this disease is spread over the whole world. Hardly even one among crores of people may be found to be free from this contagion. The total destruction of this craving takes place only when the truth about God is realized, but even before that through persistent effort it can be sufficiently brought under control. Therefore, one should ever persevere in the attempt to bring about its destruction. In this effort also care must be taken that there may not grow, in return, improper obstinacy as well as hypocrisv.

Avoiding the main hindrances mentioned above, he who attempts to elevate the soul may attain success in the end. Now, shortly, those chief practices also should be known, from which great help is derived in the uplift of the soul, and which are the man constituent parts of duty.

(1) Associating with vaintly souls, and studying the purest seriptures, their mentorious deeds and teachings should be imitated and adopted.

(2) Faith in the existence of God should he cultivated. The more faith in God increases, the more will the defects begin to disappear automatically. The stronger hecomes faith in the existence of all-pervading God, the greater will be the elevation of the soul, Just as before the rising of the son, through his mere distant indication alone, darkness disappears, so, even before one takes refuge in God, through mere development of faith in Him, sin gets inprotect and destroned. On the growth

(3) Surrendering oneself to God, Japa of His name should be constantly practised of the belief that God is always and everywhere present, man can never, and under no circumstance, be guilty of the commission of sin. disinterestedly and with spirit of Love. Whatever Divine Name appeals to one's heart, that very Name is particularly beneficial to him. From whatever Name a person derived benefit, he sang its glory in the highest of terms. This should not lead one to the error that a certain Divine Name is superior and other Names are inferior. When an impartial view is taken, all Names of God would appear to be equally powerful. That which is the object of one's worship, or dear to his heart, is the best so far as he is concerned. Through one's imagination, and according to sectarian belief, differences may be created, though in reality they are non-existent. Therefore, those who do not practise Japa of the Divine Name should take to the Japa of whatever Name appears dear to them, and those who already practise Japa of a Name should, without introducing any change, increase, with the spirit of devotion and Love, their practice of Japa of that very Name.

This much of belief, however, should be resolutely held in the mind about God that He exists, He is present everywhere, He is knower of every heart, He is almighty, all-pervading, possessed of all Dixine virtues, all knowing, primeval, eternal and the supreme Lovery greatest friend, best and nearest of relations and the supreme Teacher. Greater than He in respect of these virtues, or even His equal, there has heen, or is, none in the world, nor ever can be

(5) Through the mind, speech and body such efforts as appear to reason to be highly beneficial for spiritual good should be constantly made disinterestedly.

(6) Strictness should be observed in carrying out what his been comprehended as duty. There should be no larse in the performance of duty out of greed, fear, selfishness, tenorance or any other

Whatever appears undisputedly good the intellect should never he renounced under he influence of any attachment whatsoever. leyond this, what else can man do? He who ries to elevate the self with the help of discriminaion and reason, generally attains success And one who surrendering himself to God takes to the practice of a discipling in search of God, according to his own lights, regarding that to be an inspiration coming from God, is assured of success Out of twenty-four hours of the day and night, man should generally spend six hours in the practice of Yoga, or performance of spiritual duty, six hours in earning Invelihood by legitimate and righteous means, six hours in taking care of the hody and six hours in sleep.

Necessity of Dharma

The unanimous verdict of the Vedax, Sastras and the Purapas is that the amiverse rests on Dharma (the Divine Law), that Dharma alone fulfits human life, that Dharma alone guards man acquints sins and ushers him into a higher life; nay, it is Dharma alone which enables the soul to cross the great ocean of pain in this as well as the next world, both of which are full of as the next world, both of which are full of

of great men. The authors of Hindu Sastras and Hindu saints have proclaimed this truth with great emphasis, while other nationalities too have always accorded a high place to religion. All of them have recognized their strength in Dharma alone. So far it has heen held in all quarters that without Obarma a man's life is reduced to the life of a heast. But of late a new current of thought has set in in the world. Whereas in the past Dharma was regarded as one of the principal means of edilying our life, some people have now begun to look upon it as a woes. This is also corroborated by the utterances of saints and godly men as well as by the conduct

Some years ago it was published in certain newspapers that, pressed by the Anti-God Society of Russia, the Soviet Union issued a proclamation forhidding its members to join any relizious function. Prior to this we had never beard of God being thus tabooed by ordinance Ol course, in Puraquas we come across mistances of such open defiance of God by Demon Kings like Hirapyakašipu who persecuted bis own child, Prablada, for the latter's devotion to Sri Hati.

Even in the kingdom of Rāvaņa whose rule has become synonymous with a rule of terrotiperhaps there was no such ordinance against helief in God. Otherwise how could a God-loving soul like Vibhīṣapa live in that kingdom! True, from time immemorial there have been people who we denied the existence of God, but they too ever denounced Dharma. The greatest unbelievers ave espoused the cruse of righteousness and served the laws of morality even with a view making the world happy. The conception of harma might have differed with the different cople at different times, but the canons of harma have been followed in every country and y the people of every nationality. This anti-religious movement is not progressg in Russia alone but the seeds of it have been own even in other parts of Europe, as well as America, Asia and Africa and among Christians, addhists and Mohammedans alike. What is to e regretted all the more is the fact that even our own country, which has always regarded eligion as its very life, some people, who are morant about the true pature of God and teligion, have begun to allege that "Dharma lone has brought about our rain, that it is Dharma hich has robbed the country of its independence nd made us a subject nation, and that Dharma nd Dharma alone is the main obstacle in the oath of our all-round progress." Those who profess and believe like that look upon all believers n God and Religion as deluded fools. They are not able to realize their own mistake and t is rather difficult for them to do so; for, when man begins to look upon himself as the wisest and most learned of all, he does not appreciate else, which is conflicting with his own view. One cannot say what will be the result of the anti-religious movement, although scripture vidence as well as inference and reasoning lea us to conclude that this will land the count into a great woe. A man who does not recognize any Dharma hecomes licentious and as the number such men increases the fire of batted and animosit blazes forth, and the result is universal suffering.

Dharma alone makes a man self-controller couragious, forhearing, heroic, duitful, and a master is senses, Dharma alone teaches us the virtues of compassion, harmlessness, fortyteuses.

virtues of compassion, harmlessues, forgivenes commiseration, service, truthfulness and continent Lord Manu has recognized ten essential characteristics of Dharma, viz., fortitude, forgiveness self-control, abstaining from theft, purity of min and body, mastery of the senses, a pure intelled wisdom, truthfulness and absence of wrath.

In the Mahābhārada it is snid—

The Padmapurāna has enumerated the ollowing fundamental principles of Dharma, viz, continence, truthfulness, performance of the five daily sacrifices (va vive). charity, practice of self-restraint, forgiveness, harmlessness, tranquillity and none-thieving †

Now, is it possible for any nation or individual to be happy or progressive, who is a slave to mind and senses, lacking in intellect and wisdom, devoid of truth and forgiveness, impure in mind, speech, and body, given to bloody acts, lacking in peace of mind, not practising charity, and given to surpling other's property? Is it not absolutely necessary for every nation or individual seeking advancement to possess these essential characteristics of Dharma? Can a nation lacking in these fundamentals of Dharma prosper in the world? Let those who seek to destroy all trace of religion consider this question calmly as well as seriously and importably only once and they

Hence those who have some regard for Dharma should gird up their Ioins to do all they can for the preservation of Dharma. They should apily themselves to the task of propagating religious literature, broadcasting pure ideas of Dharma and investigating and preaching the subtle truths of Dharma. At the same time they should gather such moral strength hy practising Dharma that they may be able successfully to stem the tide of this onti-religious movement. Our Sanatana Dharma has no quarrel with other religions. The Mahabharata says—eight crores of Hindus got transformed into Muslims Men who were once profectors of the cow, Brahmans and temples now became their enemies. This was nothing but the evil effect of the imutation of Muslim culture and Muslim habits and ideas.

"That Dharma which is in conflict with another is Kudharma (bad religion). True Dharma is that which does not oppose any other religion".

At the present time, the English are the rulers of the land, English education is being propagated in every corner of the country. Contact with the English is daily increasing. That is why today English dress, language, food and manners are being rapidly adopted by the people of our nation. Simultaneously, Hindu religion and the Hindu nation are on the decline and the influence of Christianity is growing. This calamity is taking place hefore our eyes; it does not require any proof. Renunciation of national culture and sentiments in imitation of others leaded to his increable result.

Therefore, all our people should strongly realize the fact that Westera culture and its imitation are in no way beneficial to us. They lead to the destruction of our religious sentiments, and making us run after material advancement, compel us to remain deprived of our true welfare.

True Happiness

Every intelligent person can, if he considers the problem, realize that through the attainment of birth as a human being, some exceptional gain must accene to us. Food, drink, sleep, the joy of procreation and other forms of world enjoyment can be gained even in lower form of life like that of beasts and insects. If the life of a human being is wasted only in the attinment of this joy, what do we achiev through the human hirth? The supreme 200 of huntan life is to gain that incomparable am true happiness, the like of which there is nothing in the world. That happiness is 'God-Realization'

According to this statement of the Lord, nowadays also among the few, who strive for the attainment of true happiness, scarce any climbs up to the final story of achievement. the majority of practicants stop after pursuing little practice. They cannot, therefore, raise bemselves to a superior spiritual fevel. To my inderstanding, the following may be the cause of their lack of success-

- (1) Qualified propagators of this teaching are very few in the world. For men of renunciation, learning, and right conduct. capable of hard labour, and true saints alone, can be the propagators of this teaching.
- (2) Being satisfied with slight improvements practicants do not feel any need for great spiritual efforts.
 - (3) Some practicants get tired after pursuing a little amount of practice. They find themselves at their wit's end considering their discipling to be of no particular benefit to them.
 - (4) People generally lack faith in the attainment of true happiness, for as in sense-emovments, pleasure is not experienced in the initial stages of the spiritual practice. This contributes to lack of diligence in the practice.
 - (5) Some people regard the attainment of this happiness as he ond their power, and therefore remain sunk in despair.

Besides these some other causes also may be mentioned; but among them all, ignorance, 43

"That state, called Yoga, which is frea from the contact of pain (in the form of transmigration), should be known. Nay, this Yoga should be resolutely practised with an unwearled mind"

Though the means for the attainment of his true happiness is somewhat difficult, it is not altogether impossible of being accomplished. Even if difficult, it becomes wholly simple, mooth and exceptionally easy, when one takes feige in God. The Lord makes the definite roomise in the Gib-

> मो हि पार्यं भ्यपाधित्य वेऽषि च्युः वापयोत्तयः । स्त्रियो वैदयास्त्रया शुद्रास्तेऽषि यान्ति परी गतिम् ॥ स्त्रिः पुनर्योद्धाणाः प्रच्याः भाष्यं गातर्ययस्त्रयः।

"Arjuna, womanfolk. Vaisyas (members of the trading class). Sadras (those belonging to the labouring class), and even those that are born of the womb of sig (such as the parlab), taking refuge in Me, they too attain the supreme geat. What wonder, then, that the holy Brahmans (members of the intellectual or priestly class) and devoutroyal asges should attain it. Therefore, having obtained this joytess and transient human life, devots yourself to Me."

Therefore, with firm faith in God, and irrendering himself to God, let the practicant river to remove the obstacles in the path of its spiritual progress, by adopting the following cans—

(1) Approaching a Mahatma (saint) whom he considers to be the hest from the point of view of conduct, renunciation and knowledge, the practicant should submit himself to the former and hegin with energy the practice of a discipline according to the saint's instruction. He should entertain firm faith in the words of the saint; approaching the latter he should not remain dubious or doubtful; he should not give preference to his own intellectual powers; if he fails to understand the instruction of the saint he should get his doubts removed by putting questions in a humble spirit, and starting the practice of the discipline, if he fails for some time to obtain happiness as a direct experience, he should never turn back from carrying out the instruction of the saint, believing in the supreme good which he will attain in the end.

The Lord said-

त्तर्रिद् प्रणिपातेन परिमर्शनेन शैवपा। वपदेश्यन्ति हे झार्ने ज्ञानिनसत्त्वर्शिनः ॥

(Gua, IV. 34)

"Altin this knowledge by all means. If you prostrate yourself at the fact of the wise, render them all forms of service, and question them with a guiletess beart, again sudagein, those wits sears of troth will unfold that knowledge to you."

(2) The practicant should never think that a day will come when he will give up his spiritual practice. On the contrary, he should regard it as his best wealth, supreme duty, sweetest nector, greatest happiness and the hest support of life. Those who think that after attainment of the knowledge of God they do not require to submit themselves to any discipline commit an error. How can they renounce the practice which brings supreme peace to their heart. The condition of the saint after realization of God makes even men of evil conduct feel drawn towards spiritual discipline: his sight compels men without discipline to start the practice of a discipline. How can the saint himself be indifferent to that discipline? When this is so, people who on the realization of very slike spiritual progress begin to conside themselves accomplished are, indeed in great error. This error create obstacles in the spiritual path. In prings about their fall. One should therefore, always safeguard oneself from this error.

- (3) The practicant should entertin the firm faith in his mind that nothing is difficult for one who is dutilal and hat taken refuge in God. He can easily accomplish the most difficult task Every individual is, as a mitter of fact endowed with this capacity. To fee lick of especity means degrading one self. To an energetic man, even a hard and difficult task becomes easy of accomplishment.
- (41 Every practicant should go on examinate by bimself. Through subtle analysis and examination, even his hidden defects may be made perfectly wisble. The practicant should know whether his mind has been brought under control, whether it has been mide pure, one pasted and freed from the entanglements.

of worldly objects. God-Realization is a far ery till complete control over the mind and senses has been attained. The Lord says:—

भमंबतात्मना थोगो पुष्पाप इति से सतिः । बद्दवारमना सु बनना शबयोऽशप्तुमुगावतः॥

"Yoga is difficult of achievement for one whosa mind is not subdued, by him, however, who has the mind under control, and is ceaselessly striving, it can be essily sittained through practice, such is My conviction"

Therefore, the practicant should, in the first stance, bring his mind under control and make pure and one-pointed. The scriptures primarily y down two means for attaining this endhey are—

(1) Practice, and (2) Dispassion.

The Lord said-

अमेरायं महाबाही सनी दुर्निमहं चल्रम्। अस्यामेन त कीलीय वैराम्येण च गुरुते॥

(Cit.3, V1. 35)

(Gus. VL 36)

"The mind is without doubt unsteady and difficult to curb. Arjuna, but it can be controlled through practice (of meditation) and dispassion, O son of Kunti " Similarly, Maharsi Pataniali says -

^{*}Methods of mind-control have been discussed in a otlet estitled "Some Methods of Mind-control" of world's objects. God-Realization is a far ery till complete control over the mind and senses has been attained.

The Lord says

भर्मपतात्मना योगो तुरमात इति मे मतिः। शायासना तु यनना शत्रपोऽतालुम्यायतः॥

"Toga is di", uit of achievement for one whose n r I is not subdaed, by him, however who has the mind noder control, and is crancicast strivute. It can be sailly attained through practice, such is My conviction."

Therefore, the practicant should, in the first isstance, bring his mind under control and make it pure and one-pointed. The scriptures primarily lay down two means for ittining this end. They are—

(1) Practice, and (2) Dispassion

The Lord said -

अर्थरार्थ महाबाहा मनी दुर्तिमहं चलस्। अस्तामेत स कीर्थय नैमायेस स स्टाने॥

अन्यायेत तु कीन्नेय वैशस्येम च गृहाते॥ (GIA, VI. 36)

"The mind is without doubt unsteady and difficult to curb. Arjuna but it can be controlled through practice (of meditation) and dispassion, 0 con of Konu".

Similarly, Maborot Pitiniali says -

Methods of mind-control have been discussed backet entitled "Some Methods of Mind-control"

भम्यामधीसम्यास्यां तक्षिरोधः।

(Yoga I.I.

"Through Practice and Dispassion that (the mind) is brought under control."

For a detailed explanation of the term "Practice" and "Dispassion", the reader shoul refer himself to the Yoga-Shirar and other bookbut the Lord Himself has mainly describe "Practice" as follows:

यतो यतो निश्चरति मनश्रञ्चलमस्पिरम् । ततस्ततो नियर्क्यतदारसन्येव वर्स त्रवेष् ॥ (Gu.j. VL 25

"Restraining the restless and fidgety min from all those objects after which it runs be should repeatedly concentrate it on God."

With regard to "Dispassion", the Lord said-ये दि संस्तर्भना भीमा दुल्लयोनय एव ते ।

याह सरकाल अन्य दुल्यनय प्रता आधन्तवन्तः कोन्तेष म तेषु स्पते सुषः॥ (Gbs. V. 22)

"The pleasures which are born of sense-contact are verily sources of psho (though appearing as enjoyable to worldly-minded people) They have a beginning and an end (they come and go), Arjuna, it is for this reason that a wise man does not induige in them."

Thus, through "Practice" and "Dispossion" having made the mind pure, subordinate to self, one-pointed and full of Dispossion, one should take to meditation, with a view to keep it constantly fixed and steady in the form of God. For instance, the Lord said:

संकल्पप्रभवान् कामोस्त्यत्तवा सर्वोनरीयतः। मनसैवेन्द्रियप्राप्तं विविषम्य समन्ततः॥ शनैः शनैस्परमेद्वृद्धाः श्रविगृहीतया। आस्मस्यं मनः कृरवा न किश्चित्रपि विन्तयेत्॥

"Completely giving up all desires arising from thoughts of the world, and fully restraining the senses from all sides by mind, he should through gradual practices attain tranquality, and having established in God through reason controlled by steadfastness, he should not think of anything else."

When through "Proctice" and "Dispassion" the mind has been made pure, free, one-pointed and full of Dispassion, at becomes certainly easy to keep it engaged in the meditation of Ood, but even without fully brunging the above two methods into service, if man, surrendering himself to God, takes seriously to the practice of Japa of the Divine Name and meditation of God. he can gain everything even by this form of meditation, soon the practicent's mind becomes pure, one-pointed and subordinate to him; there is not the least doubt about this

Maharşî Patañjalı also, while describing the

'ईश्वरप्रविधानाद्वा"

That is, "Practice" and "Dispassion" are the mind. The mind of the

From this it may be concluded that practices the Japa, austerities, vows, charities, service of the masses, Satsanga and study of the scriptures, tc., are recommended and observed only for the tractice of meditation.

Therefore, the most direct, simple and easiest means of attaining true happiness lies in the ractice of constant meditation on the Form of Mod The scriptural authorities have described t under the names of Dhyana (Meditation k Smarapa (Remembrance) and Nididbydsana constant musing). In Karmayoga (Yoga of Action), Shikhyayoga (Yoga of Knowledge) and their practices, meditation on God holds the rimary place.

There are many different forms of meditation which practicants can adopt during the state of practice, according to their qualifications. The sates of all men are not congenial to the same orm of practice. There are many paths to reach destined goal. Even so, though as the fruit of practice the same suppresse Object is gained.

there are differences in the methods of practice. Establishing identity with God, the embodiment of Existence. Knowledge and Bliss, some people meditate on Ilis Tormless or Unmanifest State; while others meditate on an all-pervading God in the spirit of servint to a Master. Some meditate on the Lord's Universal Foum, while others on the Form of Sri Vispu, possessed of four arms; some meditate on Sri Kippa, the holder of the flutt and enchanter of the heart, while others on the Form of Sri Rama, the Best Person, who land down the standard of propricty.

while some others on the Form of Srl Siva, the embodiment of Blessedness

"Others (JELasyotts) betake themselves to Me through their offering of Knowledge, worshipping Me (in My Absolute and formless aspect), as their very self; white still others worship Me in My Universal Form in many ways, taking Me to be diverse in diverse celestial forms."

Therefore, a practicant should constantly meditate on a form of God which may be more appealing to his heart, and for which he may have greater faith. The final goal is the same for all, there is no need to entertain the feast doubt about the goal.

Practicants are generally found divided into two classes-viz, (1) those who worship God in an undivided wny, i. c., establishing identity Him; and 12) those who worship Him in spirit of Mauter and servant. Among t maintenance of constant identity with only God, the Supreme Brahma, stainless, embodi of Existence, Knowledge and Bliss, is the form of meditation for those who worship in undivided way. But for the second class, devotees who worship God in the spirit of Mad servant, the scriptures have laid down vai ignorance about the process of meditation practicant desires, indeed, to meditate on but, as a matter of fact, he meditates on world. This defect is very commonly obest and heard. Therefore, it is extremely necess to know the correct processes of establish upion of mind with God. Our scriptural author bave attempted, by various means, to exp these processes, some of which are being sho described in the following lines

Contemplation on God should, no don be constantly carried on all the time, dur work and rest, or during taking of food a drink, conversation ar in the course of of forms of activity, but when the practicant specia takes his seat for meditation, he should tare that worldy thoughts may not come up the world remains, he should without fail earry on Japa of the Divine Name along with the practice of meditation. Without the help of Japa of the Divine Name, the mind cannot remain steady on the Form of the Object of the Name. for any length of time. Sleep, indolence and various worldly latencies of the mind appear as hindrances and overwhelm the mind. The Name (of God) is the hest means for keeping the Object of the Name (God) in mind. It does never allow the mind to forget the Form of its object. Thus the Name affords very strong belp in the practice of meditation. Therefore, in the eourse of meditation, the lana of the Name should never be stopped till the mind gets completely identified with the object of meditation-These are only some general points Now, some definite processes of meditation will be placed before the reader

Rules of Meditation according to the Path of

The practicant who intends to worship God following the path of Identity should after taking his seat in the manner mentioned above, and renouncing all other thoughts, revolve these ideas in his mind.

(1) All that exists is full of God, the embodiment of Illiss, Consciousness itself, the Supreme Irahma, Besides Hum, there is absolutely nothing, which exists; the knowledge of that Brahma also belongs to Brahma alone. He is Himself the same as knowledge; He is never non-existent. That is why He is described as Truth, constant and eternal, He is boundless, immense, infinite. The tund, intellect, the ego, subject (seer), object (of sight) and the act of sceing, and whatever else is—all are but supermapositions on Brahma, and are the same as Brahma, As a matter of fact, beades God, the Supreme Brahma, nothing exists. The whole of creation like a dream is imaxinged in God.

'सरवं ज्ञानसनस्तं ब्रह्म'

(Tauttertya, E. 21)

"Brahma is of the nature of Truth and Consciousness, and Infinite,"

According to this Śruti, God, the embodiment of Bliss, Truth and Knowledge, exists, 'Knowledge' is not a virtue, attifute, or a form of energy (Sakti) of His apart from Him. In the same way, Sat (Existence) also is not a virtue, as distinguished from Him. He exists from eternity, and will eternally exist, that is why in common usage and in Vedic idiom, He is called Sat (Existence), but in reality He is beyond both Existence and Non-existence. Sat and Asat—

'न सत्त्रप्रासदच्यते ।'

(Guā, XIII- 12)

"Brahma is said to be neither Sat (being) nor Asat (non-being)"

Thus strongly fixing the thought on the incomprehensible Form of Brahma, let the practicant, in the place of Japa, revolve, again and again, in his mind, in the following way, the attributes of God, and go on uttering the same. In reality, Brahma is beyond both name and form; but these attributes are conceived in order to bring out His Bliss aspect in the mind-Therefore, merging all his thoughts in Brahma who is Bliss itself, and meditating on such attributes of Brahma as 'Perfect Bliss,' 'Unbounded Bliss,' 'Undisturbed Bliss,' 'Compact Bliss,' 'Bliss which is Consciousness,' Bliss which is Knowledge,' 'Supreme Bliss,' 'Eternal Bliss,' 'Bliss which is Real, Bliss which is Life, Bliss Absolute, one, all-pervading Bliss,'-let him make the thought stronger and stronger that nothing exists but Bliss. Simultaneously, with exceptional speed, entering and submerging the mind in Brahma. the embodiment of Bliss, let him realize these attributes as undifferentiated from God. Through this process repeated many a time, when all his thoughts get merged in God, when besides one God, the embodiment of Knowledge and Bliss, his mind becomes free of the thought of existence of any other thing, he becomes unshakeably established in God who is Bliss itself and incomprehensible. When the practice having become ripe, through repeated meditation practised regularly everyday the practicant no longer feels his self and the world at large as separate from God, when Knower, Knowledge and the Object of Knowledge, all become the same as Brahma, the embodiment of Knowledge and Bliss, the practicant becomes thoroughly accomplished. In that state, the practicant, practice and the object of practice, call become one, all become one shoulded the should be the same for all time. Whether moving about or seated, or engaged in the proper and punctual performance of every other daty, there is not the slightest deviation from his sprittual state. The Lord said:—

This first part of the hardwarenths.

सर्वेशा वर्तमानोऽपि स योगी मधि वर्तते ॥ (Guá. VI. 81)

"Ha who, established in unity, worships Me as residing in all batuge (as their very Self), that Yogt, though sugaged in all forms of activities, dwells in Me."

In reality, at no time he sees either the world or his self as separate from Brahma. That is why he is never rehorn after death, and becomes freed for all time to come. In the Gira, it is said-

तव्युद्धयसदारमानस्यभिष्ठास्तरपरायणाः । गच्छत्त्वप्रनरावस्ति ज्ञाननिर्धेतकरमयाः॥

(V. 17)
"Those whose mind and intellect are wholly merged in him, who are constantly established in identity with Him, and are exclusively devoted to Him, their sins being wiped out by wisdom, so to whence there is no return "

This is the ultimate result of the above for of meditation.

Second Form of Meditation in the Path of Identity

यच्छेहारमनसी प्राञ्चनग्रच्छेरञ्चान आसिन । ज्ञानमारमनि सहति नियक्ष्रेत् तथुक्टेक्टान्त भारमनि ॥

[Katha. Lin. "A person endowed with understanding shot restrain his speech and all other senses a absorb them in the mind, he should absorb the mind in the intellect, and the intelle in Mahat-Tattva (second Principle), t cosmic intellect, thereafter he should abso the cosmic intellect in God who tranquillity itself."

Retiring to a secluded spot, to restrain th ten senses from running after their respective objects, in other words, controlling the function of all the senses to engage the mind repeatedly in remembrance of the Form of God, means 'absorbing speech and the other senses in the mind.' Thereafter, renouncing all doubts with regard to the Divine Form meditated upon, and reaching a settled conviction, to bring the mind to a state of calmness, that is, awakening of Knowledge to the total exclusion of all unsteadiness of the mind, means absorbing of the mind in the intellect.' In this state of meditation, there remains consciousness of distinction between the meditator and his object of meditation, God; but after this stage when the individuality of the intellect, through which is reached a settled conviction about the Form of all-pervading God, the cubodiment of Existence, Knowledge and Bliss, the Supreme Brahma, gets absorbed in the Aggregate intellect; when after cessation of all distinctions between the meditator, meditation and the object of meditation, there remains consciousness of the Form of only one God, the Supreme Brahma, who is Knowledge itself, the state is known as the 'absorption of the intellect in cosmic intellect?

After the above, there arrives another indescribable state when there remains not the least residue of any separate impression of the meditator, meditation and the object of meditator, and one God alone who is Consciousness itself, the embodiment of Existence, Knowledge and Blits, remains, and beyond film there remains no separate existence in any way—that state is called 'absorbing of the cosmic Intellect in God who is tranquillity itself.'

This is what they call seedless Samadbi, attainment of Brahma, the 'absolute, and attrimment of Brahma, the 'absolute, and attrimment of beatitude. This is the last state of realization.

Speech fails to describe this state, the mind cannot conceive of it. For it is a state beyond the mind, speech and intellect. This is final emancipation.

Reaching this state, man accomplishes the object of existence; no other duty 15, then, left, which he has to attend to It is said in the यम्प्यारमस्तिरेयः स्याद्शसानुसम्ब मानवः । आरमस्येयः च संनुष्टलस्य कार्यं न विद्यते ॥

"He, however, who takes delight in the Self alone and is gratified with the Self, and is contented in the Self, has no duty."

According to the path of Identity, there

(III, 17)

re many other methods of meditation on God which cannot be described here because the rticle has already grown in length. The purport f all is almost the same. For practicants who overship God in the spirit of Identity, it is extremely profitable to constantly remember the ollowing verse of the Gist.

बहिरम्तथः भूतानामवरं चरमेव च । स्दमखात्तद्विवेदं नृहस्यं वास्तिके च तन् ॥

"If is without and within all beings and constitutes both animate and inanimate creation. By reason of its subtlety, It is incomprehensible", It is both at hand and far away!."

"Just as water particles so the cays of the sun, became their minuteness, cannot be seen by the urdinary people, even because of His minuteness the All pervading God cannot be own by the ordinary people.

† Instance as God pervades all space, and is the soul every being. He as mastest to all.

[†] Because of their want of Knowledge, He is far, far ray from people who are faithless and ignorant-

Therefore, the practicant whose heart is inclined towards following the path of Identity, should devote himself to the practice as laid down above without delay.

Meditation on the Universal Form of God

If, after he has sat for meditation with closed eyes in a solitary place, the thought of the illusory world does not leave the mind of the practicant, he should adopt the following line of thought:

Whatever things in the three worlds, viz. the earth, the intermediate region between earth and beaven, and the heaven are observed, heard or conceived by the mind, all of them directly constitute the bodily form of God Himself. With the help of His energy called Maya, it is God Himself, the embodiment of Existence, Knowledge and Bluss, who is manifested in this Universal Form. For instance, the Gita says --

> सर्वतःप्राणिपादः नःभवतोऽक्षितिरोगसम्। सर्वत श्रीतमलोके सर्वमायन्य तिष्टति ॥

"It has hards and feet everywhere, eyes, head and face everywhere, cars everywhere It stands pervading all ".

[.] Just as ether, besog the cause of air, fire, water and earth, exists pervading them all, even so God, being the cause of everything, exists pervading the whole of creation, both animate and inanimate

Again,-

भयता बहुमैतेल कि जातेन ततार्तुन। विष्यपादमितं कृण्यमेकतिन स्थितो जगत्॥

"Or, what will you gain by knowing all bits in detail, Arjana p Suffice it to say that I stand holding this entire universe by a spark of My Yogio power,"

Again .-

यणापि सर्वभूताशं बीतं तदहमर्तुन । न तद्रम्ति विना सस्यानमया भूतं चरावरम् ॥

"Arjuna. I am even that which is the seed of all beings For there is no creature, animate or insulimate, which exists without Me "

(X. 39)

Reflecting thus, again and again, and regarding the whole of creation as in ultimate analysis a Form of God, the mind should be fixed on the ascertained Divine Form. This practice quickly removes the unsteadiness of the mind. Thereafter, wherever the mind goes it sees only God. Nothing appears before it except God. Just as one who understands the many varieties of dolls made of ice, as in essence nothing but water, does not fall into error regarding their constituent water, and definitely sees all the dolls as water, even so the practicant who carries on the above form of meditation on 1, sees the entire universe as God. In conception, there exists nothing as the world; bis mind becomes calm and free from doubt. This is also an easy method of fixing the mind on God.

Meditation on the Four-armed Form of Sri Visnu

Retiring to a solitary place, and scated in the posture mentioned above, let the practicant close his eyes and intoxicated with joy start the practice of meditation with a strong desire in his heart to meet the Supreme Beloved

The meditation should be carried on either by faing the mind on an image of God seen in a temple or a potture of God, or a Form conceived by the mind of the practicant after bearing from saints, or seeing the Lord in a dream, if he is fortunate enough to go through that experience; in other words, fiving the mind on whatever the practicant may have understood, or whatever notion he may have formed, about God's Form. Meditation on a Form of God may be ordinarily carried on as follows—

(1) The Lord is prevent before us in the sky about one and a quiter cubit above the saith. His most beautiful lotus-feet shining like a beap of sapphires look as bright as an infinite number of suns. His soft toes with giltering hails are adorned with gold ornaments studded with gens. Like His lotus-feet, the Lord's kneep and thigh are shining like heaps of blue gems through His yellow robe. Oh! how graceful are His four long arms I He holds the conch and His circular weapon (Chakra) with the two upper hands, and the club and lotus with the two lower hands All the four arms are adorned with armilets and other most beautiful ornaments. Oh ! how broad and supremely beautiful is the chest of the Lord, with mals of Sri Laksmi and Bhrzu's foot in the middle of it I The Lord's neck possessed of the be utilul colour of a blue lotus is most handsome to look at, and is adorned with a necklace studded with gems, the Kaustubba diamond and many varieties of heautiful garlands made of gold and sweet-smelling flowers as well as with the Vau vanti garland. His chin is graceful, the lips are red, the beautiful aquiline nose is adorned with a pearl hanging from it. Both the eyes of the Lord are as large as lotus leaves, and are similar to the blue lotus in bloom. The ears are adorned with ear-drops shaped like the crocodile, the forehead contains the Tilak mark with a red streak (mark of $17) in the middle, and the head is adorned with a lovely crown studded with pearls and precious stones. Oh ! the incomparable enchaning face of the Lord, putting the full moon into shame, is lascinating the mind I Like the rays of the sun, there is an aura round the Lord's face whose light has made the gems in His crown and other ornaments a thousand times more hrilliant. Oh! I am blessed today, perfectly hlessed, that I bave the privilege of meditating on the gently smiling, cheerful Form of $11 Hari.

When through continuous meditation on this line, the Lord's form becomes firmed established in the mind, the practicant, overwhelmed with Love, should 6x his mind on that enchanting Form. He will attain absorption in the Form of the Lord, when through repeated practice of meditation be will lose consciousness of the self, of the world outside and even of his meditation, and retain the consciousness of God, the enchanter of the heart, alone. When this happens, the practicant immediately comes to know the real truth about God, and God becomes compelled through the power of the practicant's Love to mailfest Himself to a definite Form, and grace the practicant with Driver vision.

The Lord says in the Gifa:-

अन्त्या स्वनम्यया शक्य अहमेवंविधीःर्जुन । शार्तुं द्वष्टुं च तर्रदेन प्रवेष्टुं च परंतप ॥

(XI,54)

"Through single-minded devotion, however, I can be seen in this Form (with four arms), and known in essence and even entered into, O valiant Ariuns."

Thus gaining the direct vision of God, the practicant realizes the object of human existence. All bis vices get destroyed and he is transformed into a full-fledged saint. Thereafter he is not rehorm on earth

The Gus sayer-

मामुरेप पुनर्जना तुःसावयमाग्यानम् । सप्तुःशिन महामानः संभिद्धि वरमा गताः ॥ ४ प्रशाः १५ ।

"Great sonis, who have attained highest perfection, having come to Me, are no more anti-cted to rabirth, which is the abods of sortew, as d transitory by nature."

Vivadizing Set Visna, lying on the great erpent Sear, in the sky within one's own heart, and revolving in his mind the following thoughts bout the Lord's Perm and virtnes, obeisances hould be offered to Him again and again.

"With bent head, I offer obelsences to Dhagwin Vijun, the Lord of Lakym! Goddess of westith, and possessed of iotachika eyes, whose contenance is exceptionally calmon who is lying on the back of Si fees making the latter His bed, who has a lotte spring from its navel, who is the Lord of all the celestials, and is the support of the whole universe, who is all-pervading like the eky, who possesses the beautifur hus of the blue cloud, whose limbs are exceptionally handsome, who is realized by the Yogis through meditation, who is the Lord of all worlds and who removes the fear of high medicants."

काकविन, सुरपति, समापति क्षुभव शान्तास्तर । समककोचन, कञ्चरहर, कस्त्राण-पर-दातार ॥ He whose brilliance vies with the brilliance of innumerable suns, whose coolness is equal to that of countless moons, who possesses the lustre of crores of Fire-gods, and the prowess of numberless Wind-gods, whose affluence is equal to that of cauntless Indras, who possesses the beauty of crores of Cupids, whose forbearance is equal to that of innumerable Earths, whose gravity is equal to that of countless oceans, whom more can explain by any simile, whose real nature has only heen assumed even by the Vedis and scriptures, and could not be fathomed by anyone, to that matchless Sil Hari, I offer obstances again and again.

To Bhiguvan Sri Visnu, the embodiment of Existence, Knowledge and Bliss, who is gently smiling, and the drops of sweat on whose Budy reflecting light appear most beautiful, to that redeemer of the fillen, I offer obessness, again and again. When, through practice repeated on this line, the mind becomes tranquel, pure and cheerful, it should be firmly established in the meditation of Sri Natawan, 19ing on Sesa as His bed.

शाल संदर-वर्षे, भीरबनाम, नेप-सनुदार । प्रमुक्ता-बेश्वय प्रमोमित हरद मुक्तारा ॥ शक्व-प्रकार-बन्धवृत्त सुत्र विभूषित चार । दन पर विशेषात पावन का-अन्न चरार ॥ चीर-सम्बाद्धांत्र केथी-व्याचनाम, नारा । इ.संबद बनस्व हरक, सम्बद्धांत्र स्विस्टा ॥ There are many other processes of meditation God in hoth His aspects, viz, with For and without Form. In the present article, or some short indications of them have be given. Special knowledge on the subject en gained when a practicant seriously star his practice, surrendering himself to God at the grace of saints. With regard to meditation God's aspect with Form, only two process of meditation on Sri Visgu have heen describe in this article. Following these processes practican can meditate on the Forms of Sri Kama, Sri Krspa, Sri Siva and other Forms of God, according to their respective faith and liking. The fruit of all suc-practices is the same.

On rising from meditation in solitude, when the practicant enters the field of activity, by should during all his works, and while moving about and resting, try to carry on, in the same manner, the Japa of the Name of his choser deity and meditation on His Form. Not a moment of this invaluable life should be allowed to pass without remembrance of God. One remembers during his last moment whatever is constantly practised by him throughout the life; and his future is determined by the thoughts of the last moment. That is why the Lord says in the Gus:-

तकात् महेतु कालेषु ज्ञाननुवार युव्य थ । मरवर्षितमनोतुद्विकालेवैध्यत्यसीयम् ॥ (४॥॥.१) "Therefore, Arjuna, think of Me at all times and fight. With mind and reason thus surrendered to Me, you will doubtless come to Me."

Thus through continued meditation on God, the embodiment of Existence, Knowledge and Illiss, the Supreme Brahms, the heirt of the practicant grows purer and spotless, All his wornes are gone and the heart overflows with peace that passeth understanding. The mind gets one-pointed, and comes under control. True happiness goes on gradually growing within him, as through intensification of practice, the purity and concentration of his ' mind increase. When the practicant gains even the slightest experience of this true happiness, he begins to look upon the joy of even sovereignty over the three worlds as quite worthless and insignificant compared to it. In this state, the joy derived from ordinary enjoyments of the world offers not the slightest temptation. On the contrary, all emoyments begin to appear as perishable, momentary and full of woe Through this practice, all the impulses of the practicant's mind gets speedily withdrawn from the world and becomes fixed and established in God. Realizing for all time the true and infinite happiness, the practicant gets satisfied and contented. All his sorrows totally cease The attainment of this state is the ultimate goal of human existence.

Dear reader, we should cultivate the firm conviction that the supreme duty of a man's like is only to realize God, the embodiment of lixiatence. Knowledge and Illies, the Supreme Brahma, the Almghty Lord, the Bestower of Happiness. In this world and the next, the greatest, the eternal, the truest happiness liss in this. Apart from R, whatever other forms of happiness appear in the world, are in realize no happiness at all. They are all, truly speaking, missry and nothing but misery. The Paga-Dariana sais.—

परिवासनायमंग्रहःसदुःगीर्वेसपृक्तिवेशेभाच दुःगमेव सर्वं विवेडिनः । (11.35)

"All forms of sense-epjoyments of the world, being subject to change, and mixed up with pain, the latent impressions of the mind, and worldly corrow, and involving a minual conduct of to the Satisfor Rajusjo and Tunasia propensities of the mind, are nothing but sorrow to men of distributation."

Therefore, renonening wholly the transient perishable and artificial enjoyments of the world, we should speedily devote ourselves, with energy and determination, to the prictice leading to calization of God, the embodiment of true tappiness.

Lessons in Devotion and Divine Love

The mind of one who has taken refuge in God prays to the Lord-

O Lord 1 O Sustainer of the Universe 1 O Kind-hearted Protector of the distressed 1 O Ocean of Mercy 1 O Knower of the heart 1 O

Saviour of the fallen 1 O Almighty Lord ! O Friend of the poor I O Narayana I O Harr ! Have pity on me, have pity on me ! O Lord ! O Reader of mans thoughts! You are fumous

Have pity on me, base pity on me! O Lord! O Reader of mans thoughts! You are fumous throughout the world as 'Ocean of Mercy' and 'Almi, htty', therefore it is Your business to show compassion.

O Lord, if Your Name is 'Purther of the fallen', please come, and grant me Your vision. Bowing, again and again, to Your feet, I beseech You hambly, O Lord, bless me with Your sight. O Lord, except You I have none in the world whom I can call as my own. Please grant me once the privilege of Your sight, do not tatualize me any more. You are called 'Sustainer of the Ilniverse', then why do You not satisfy my heartfelt desire? O Embodiment of mercy IO

Ocean of grace I Show me Your compasfleing an Ocean of compassion, a little sho d compassion will bring no diminution of quality in You Through only a slight express of Your grace, the whole of this universe ? be saved. Then, what does it cost You to s this insignificant soul ? O Lord, if You look my doings, there is absolutely no he for me Therefore, paying attention to You Name as 'Sivious of the fillen', grant to t Insignificant soul the privilege of Your sig I know neither Devotion, nor Yoga, nor a other practices, that I may claim the privilege virtue of my performances. Being the know of man's thou bits, if You bad not been Ocean of mercy, none would have called You !

the lytter name in this world, and being a Ocean of mercy, it You could not read it anguish of the heart, none would have called You as the 'Knower of the heart'. Thous possessed of the above two virtues, if You ha lacked in power, none would have called Yo Almighty, and possessed of all powers. If Yo had been only a Lovet of devotees, none would have called You as 'Saviour of the failen' O Lord 10 Ocean of mercy 'Have pity on me and grunt me once Your sight.

The individual soul, addressing the minds savis.

O wicked mind, can your hypocritical prayers please the Lord who knows man's heart? Does He not know that your prayers are not disinterested, that you possess neither reverence, nor faith, nor love, in the slightest degree? If you have faith that God is the Knower of man's heart, why do you offer these verbal prayers? False prayers, without love, obtain no hearing from God; and if you possess love, where is the need for words of prayer? For the Lord Hunself has said in the Gold—

ये यथा मां प्रपद्मते तांसधैव भजाग्यहम् ।

"Arjuna, howsoever men approach Me, even so do I seek them."

Again,-

ये भजन्ति तुर्मा भक्त्या मधि ते तेषु वाप्यहम्॥

"They, however, who devontly wuship Me abide in Me, and I also stand revealed in them."

O mind, though being the Ocean of compassion, if Sri Hari (God) does not show compassion, there is nothing to worry, you should go on performing your duty God is a Lover, He recognizes love the subject matter of love is known only to the Lover Can God, the knower of heart, grant you His vision drawn by your pretended Love? When

^{*}Just as subtle, all-pervading Fire becomes mannest, only when a fire is made through the lighting up of combustible matter, even so God, who pervades everywhere, is revealed in the beart of one who practices Bhayase with a devoted beart the strings of Pure Love. Reverence and Faith are ready, bound by them, God will Himself come to you. O stupid mind, ean false prayers produce any effect? Is not God the reader of hearts? O mind, good-hye to you, your habit is to wander about the world, please go wherever you like. Being associated with you, I have roamed these years in this unsubstantial world. Now, having taken refuge at the feet of God, your entire fraud stands revealed to me. For my sake, you deceitfully offer prayers to God in humble and beseeching words, but you do not know that God is a reader of the heart. The Yegara istha truly says that God eannot be realized till the mind is trinscended, in other words, till it is destroyed. Exhaustion of desires, destruction of the mind and God-

Realization-these three processes take place simultaneously. Therefore, I entreat you to retire from here gracefulls; this bird will no longer he caught in the net of your phantasms, for it has taken refinge at the feet of Sri Hari (God). What? Do you mean to leave after swallowing the bitter pill ? Oh! Where is that phantasy? Where are the enemies -anger, lust and others ? Your entire army is now going to be destroyed. Therefore, giving up the hope of exerting your influence, so wherever you please. (2)

The mind, again, prays to God-

O Lord, have pity on me; O Master, I

surrender myself to You, O Protector of the refusee, sive the bonour of one who has taken refuse in You. O Lord, help me, help me, come, and grace me with Your sight. I have no support in this world except You, therefore, I how to You, again and again; I make obvisances to You. Please mike no delay, quickly come and give me the privilege of Your sight, O Lord, O Ocean of mercy, come once and take ears of this bond-alkee. In Your absence, I find no support to my life. O Lord, have pity on this slave; I have surrendered myself to You please east but once Your kind look on me. O Lord, O Friend and Protector of the helpless, do not halk me any more, have puty on me. Without looking at my wickedness, reveal Yourself as the saviour of the fallen.

The individual soul, addressing the mind, again, says—

O mind, take heed I be careful! Why do

O mind, take heed I be careful I Why do you induke in these fide talks. God does not want your false humility Your deceit will not be successful here, why do you other to God these hypocrifical prayers for my sake > I do not want you to make such prayers; you may go wherever you like.

If God is the knower of the heart, where is the need to offer any prayer? If He is a Lover, what is the need to call Hun? If He is the sustainer of the Universe, what is the need to beg from Him? Good-bye to you, go hence, go. (4)

The individual soul, addressing the intellect

O senses I Good-bye to you, You also, please, leave me Where there are desires, there you have the ground to stand upon I have taken refuge at the lotus-feet of God, therefore, your stratagem will make no impression on me. O intellect! Good-bye also to you Where did you leave your wisdom, when you used to prompt me to dive into the ocean of the world? Is that teaching of any use now?

The individual soul says to GodO Lord, You are the knower of the heart, therefore I do not say that You should grant me Your vision. If I have possessed full love, could You tarry! Could even Lakşmî detain You at Vaikunțha? If I had possessed full faith in You, could You wait? Could my love and faith leave You? Oho! Elsely have I assumed in the world the roles of disinterestedness and desirelessness, and in vann do I regard myself as a refugee at Your feet. But I need not worry, whitever I obtain, I should feel delighted in the same. For, that is Your instruction in the Gid?. Therefore, while merved in Your loves if I attain even hell, it will be surprise to beaven. Why should I, then, worry? If I gain love fer You, will You not develop the same for me? When absence of Your sight will become unbervahle to me, will You, then be able to tarry? You have Yourself said in the GHI -

वे बचा मो प्रवासी तोल्पीर समान्यहम्। (17.11)

"Arjuna, howevers men approach hie, even

Therefore, I do not say that You should come and grant me Your vision; and why should You care to do so? But, no worry, please do whitever You consider best; I should feel delight in whitever You do.

Meditating on God through its eye of wisdom, and intoxicated with joy, the individual soul says—

Ohol Ohol Rijss! Bilss! Lord! Lord Have You come? Thanks to my fortune! Thanks! Fallen though I am, I have become blessed through the grace of Your lotus-feet.

bessed through the grace of Your Jours-feet.
Why should it not be so? You bave Yourself said in the GMA:—

व्यवि वेयुद्वाचारी अजते सामनन्यभाक्। सापुरव स मन्तन्यः स्वत्यस्पवस्ति। हि सः॥ सिप्रं मनति असीत्या शहबच्छन्ति निगच्छति। कम्तिय प्रति जानोहि न से अन्तः प्रणस्पति॥ "Even if the vilest strater worships Me with exclusive devotion, he should be considered a saint, for he has rightly resolved. (He is positive in his beltef that there is nothing like devoted worship.)

"Speedily he becomes virtuous and secures lasting peace Know it for certain, Arjuna, that My devotes never fatls." (7)

Gaining the vision in meditation of the wonderful Saguna Form of the Lord (Form with attributes h, the individual soul mentally describes the beauty of that Form—

Oho I How beautiful are the lotus-feet of the Lord, which, sparkling like a heap of blue gem, shine like an infinite number of suns. The soft toes containing glittering nails are adorned with gold anklets studded with gems. Like His lotus-feet, the Lord's knees and thighs are emiting their lustre through His yellow robe, like heaps of blue gems Ob! How heautiful are the Lord's four arms In the upper two hands, there are the conch and His circular weapon Chakra, and in the two lower, the club and the lotus. All the four arms are adorned with armlets and other beautiful ornaments. Oho ! How beautiful is the hosom of the Lord, the middle of which comains the marks of $4 Laksmi (Goddess of Wealth) and Bhrgu's foot How charming, again, is the neck of the Lord coloured like a blue lotus, containing a necklace studded with gems, the Kanstubha diamond, and adorned with garlands of pearl and gold, the Vaijayanti garland and other garlands of many varieties of flowers. His lips are beautiful and red, His nose containing a pearl hanging below is exceptionally charming. The Lord's two eyes are as large as leaves of the lotus, and bloom like the blue lotus. His ears are adorned with beautiful crocodile-shaped ear-drops studded with gems, the forehead contains the Tilak mark with a red streak in the middle, and the head is sdorned with a crown studded with gems. Oho l How charming is the round face of the Lord looking like the full moon containing an aura emiting rays like that of the sun, which sparkle through the gems in His crown and all other ornaments Oho l I am blessed today, indeed, truly blessed that I see hefore me God, the embodiment of Bliss, glutly smiling through His line. Thus intoxicated with joy, seeing the Lord belore him in meditation, at a distance of a cubit and a quarter length, in a Form looking only twelve years of age, standing at a height of one and a quarter cubit from earth, the soul offers mental worship to God.

Thus, offering mental worship to God, and laying Him down in a bed in the sky within the heart, the individual soul bows its head before the Lord, again and again, mentally describing the Lord's Form and virtues—

book of spiritual lore, a store-house of the principles of Action, Devotion and Knowledge II cannot be said that the GM2 deals primarily with this or that particular path or discipline. Although it is a small book in which the various topies have been touched upon only briefly, the treatment of none of these is incomplete. It has, therefore, heen fully said—

गीता सुगीता कर्तन्या किमन्यैः शास्त्रविस्तरैः। या स्वयं प्रमामस्य असरपाहिनिःसता॥

"It is needless to traverse the was field of spiritual literature, the Gul alone should reread and reread with care,—the Child which proceeded from the lotus-like lips of Padmandha (Mahkwigan, from whose navel sprang the lotus, the place of origin of the Oreator, Brahman) Humself."

who may happen to read these lines will kindly excuse me for this childish attempt.

Although each of the paths of Action. Devotion and Knowledge has its own importance it the Gift, it may nevertbeless he stated that devotion is the main theme of the Gua, that reference to Bhakti The Gus begins with Devotion there is hardly any chapter which contains no and ends with Devotion too. At the very -commencement of the discourse Arjuna surrenders himself to the Lord saying शाकि मां ला प्रक्रम् (pray instruct me; I take roinge in Thee). Similarly, at the conclusion of the discourse the Lord lends

His fullest support to, may, enjoins, the attitude of complete surrender to and dependence on God, r.e., Himself when He says मलेशमान्यरित्याच्य मामेर्क शल मन (Relinquishing dependence on all other virtues take refuge in Me alone), and further takes upon Himself the responsibility of absolving Ariuna from all sins, It is agreed on all hands that attitude of surrender represents a form of Devotion. Of course, the devotion taught by the Gua is not a hund faith devoid of discrimination or an ignorant relinouishment of duty through sloth or inertia, it is an active form of devotion hased on discrimination. This devotion can be properly practised by aspirants who have approached the perfection of God, the fullest embodiment of Perfection. The Lord Himself has described the character of this Devotion in the twelfth chapter of the Gifa. In devotion as about Karmayoga (Action) or about Bhaktiyoga (Devotion), Verses like क्यांनेवारियारो' | thy 192ht is only to action), भेगाला कुर क्योंलि (perform action while established in Yoga) refer only to Karma while established in Yogal refer only to Karma (action): and verses like arma war (fax thy mind in Me) refer only to Bhakti (devotion) But in these statements also the dependence of Karma on Bhatti, and of Bhatti on Karma may he detected, though not expressly stated. One who engages in action while established in Yoga through internal equilibrium and knowing the result of action to he in God's hands, indirectly practises devotion through remembrance of God, and a devotee engaged in devotional practices like worship, obesisnec, etc., may be similarly said to be doing some action through those practices. The difference hetween him and an ordinary person who performs action through through mind in the continuance of the man ordinary person who performs action through those practices.

practices. The difference hetween him and an ordinary person who performs action through attachment hes in this that while the latter engages in action for the fulfilment of his own worldly desires, the former does so only for the pleasure of God. The Gita has denounced renunciation of action for its own sake, and has characterized such renunciation as Tamasie in character (Gita, XVIII. 7). And stating in verse 4 of Chapter III, that perfection cannot be attained by renunciation of action, it has been pointed out in the next Sloka that complete and absolute renunciation of action is impossible. Therefore, according to the Gita, Devotion lies in pursuing through body and mind all kinds of action appropriate to the class in which a person is predominance of Tamogupa (ignorance and darkness) in the present-day world. It is on account of this Tamoguna that people who retire into seclusion are debarred from attaining divine knowledge and though outwardly engaged in prayer and meditation, they fall a prey to sleep, sloth and maction. It is found in many cases that people who give up work saying they would henceforward live in seclusion, spend their time in devotional practices and meditation alone soon get disgusted with their life of seclusion-Some of them begin to spend their time in sleep, while others are found to complain that they do not find any zest in meditation. Thus some of them turn out to be idlers, while others begin to include themselves through enjoyment of the senses. Persons who truly and sincerely devote themselves to prayer and meditation are very rare. To engage oneself wholly in devotional practices and meditation. while living in seclasion, is not undesirable, but it is not so easy as we imagine it to be. Long and sustained practice is necessary to reach this stage and the practice may be developed and made more intense by a gradual process even while performing the ordinary duties of one's life. It is, therefore, that the Lord has enjoined us to perform action in a spirit of detachment. constantly meditating on Him, taking such action as a bebest from Him and solely for cultivating His pleasure. Engagement in or withdrawal sequestered places. They do not give up work, it is work that takes leave of them. Such men when they retire to sectuded places never yield to laziness nor do they indulge in worldly thoughts or desires. On the contrary, sectusion steadily swells the stream of their devotion which unites them in no time with the great ocean of Divinity and enables them to merge their

of Divinity and enables them to merge their individual existence into the infinite, illimitable expanse of that occan. But those who are troubled by worldly impulses and distractions while living in sectusion are not qualified to suspend their activity for any length of time and lead a life of devotion in seclusion. The vast majority of people in this world belong to this last category. The practice followed by wise men is to suggest those methods alone which are suitable for the majority. Special efforts should therefore be made to turn the Sastras, towards God, and not to renounce them. It has been stated above that Arjuna was a family man, a Kṣatriya (one belonging to the warrior class) and a man of action, therefore be was enjoined to stick to the path of Action This, however, does not mean that the Girā is intended for family men, Kṣatriyas and men of action only. There is no doubt that the weetar like milk in the form of the Girā has been to emancipation, nor is Knowledge without Devotion commendable. According to the Gits, Devotion should form an integral part of both the disciplines of Action and Knowledge. The word Nistha indicating a discipline, etymologically means being established in the Paramatma, One gets established in God in two ways-as distinct from God and as identical with Him. In the former state he recognizes God as the whole (খলা) and himself as a part (খল), God as the object of worship, and bimself the worshipper. Work which is done with the above recognition and with the motive of pleasing God, in accordance with the injunctions of God, without attachment to the result of such work constitutes what is known as Karmayoga or disinterested action. And the latter state or the state of identity with Brahma, which is consolidated truth. knowledge and bliss, is that in which all action taking place in Prakrts (Nature) is recognized only as a play of Prakett, as nothing but illusion. and all existence is resolved into a unity, the unity of Brahma beyond which there is nothing This state of unity or identity is called Sankhyayoga (Yoga of knowledge) Devotion permeates both these forms of spiritual discipline. Thus it is seen that there was no necessity to mention Devotion as a separate discipline. It may be urged here that if such is the case, realization of God will not be possible through Devotion alone without recourse to Karmayoga or Juanayoga This, however, is not correct For the Lord has talk of as it is difficult to practise. It does not consist in mere outward show, it is not something to be displayed, it is, on the contrast, something which should be breaused in the heart and guarded most scrupulously against publicity. The more secret it is kept, the more precious it is held to be. It is very difficult to understiand the philosophy of Devotion Ol course, those blessed beings who have dedicated themselves to the Alberteidal Lord do not find it so difficult. The Lord Himself infolds the secret of Blakts to those who are exclusively devoted to Him, He risk them of an fears, who betake themselves to the Lord with a guileless herre. Such is His you.

सहरेड प्रस्थाय तरामीति च याचे। अवर्थ सर्वभूतेग्यो क्राव्यंतर् छत् सम ॥ (१२३वासन्यव्यंत्रकार VI. १९३३)

Dedication to the Lord is a valuable discipline, indeed; but it should be exclusive. Total and exclusive dependence immediately clients the desired response from the Lord Vibliama sought the shelter of $M$ Rams with a see heart, depending exclusively on His prote tion, and the Lord unbestitatingly extended the protection to Him No sooner did Princess Drimpid, in the Court of the Kauravas, remember Lord $M$ Kayana, the refuge of the helpless, hiving despired of relief from all other quarters, thin the cloth which sine as wrapped in was extended in tength of wifnitum. These are instances of exclusive surrender. The surrender in both these cases, however, but clief from in the ecstary of love and a vision of the Lord in everything that the mind perceives. In this way, as time goes on and the habit of perceiving God everywhere develops, the devotee forcets his own sell and the Lord alone remains. This is what constitutes motiveless, exclusive love. The love for God should have God alone or His love as its motive. He should be loved for the sake of love, and not with any ulterior motive. The aspirant should not retain in his mind even the ghost of a desire for honour, applause, high status, or for any other object of this or the next world. Nay, he should not be tempted even by the kingdom of the three worlds. Even if God Himself he pleased to offer him objects of worldly enjoyment with importunity, he should not accept them; and if his refusal displeases the Lord (although He is never displeased with anyone), he should not mind it. The very talk of personal gare should fill him with extreme disgust and abhorrence. Should the Lord make tempting offers of worldly enjoyments to him, he should be filled with remorse and feel that surely there is something wrong with his love; had it been genuine and unadulterated, and had such talk of personal gain really pricked him. the Lord would not have thought fit to tempt him with such offers. In no circumstances should he accept anything else than love of God, not even under pressure of solicitations, importunities and intimidations; he should remain firm and and abandon even the latter for the sak of her own life. Similarly, aspirants of th highest class have their mind exclusived fixed on God even while engaged in the worldly duties, The ordinary type of lovers of God endeavour to concentrate their mind of God, but due to habit and attachment the mind wanders away in spite of themselves t worldly objects, even while to the string; meditation or saying their prayers. Those whave God as the main object of their love formall their worldly duises with their min constantly fixed on Him, while those who has God as the exclusive object of their love fit their Beloved pervading the whole create admarts as well as innaimate. known only by God Himself, realizers of the truth may give some description of Him in the form of hints or suggestions, but whatever is known and described about Him, He is actually far different from that. The Vedas, the scriptures, the saints and siges have gone on describing Him from time immemorial, but their descriptions have not yet come to an end. If anyone attempts to describe that reality either by synthesizing those statements, or analysing them, a complete description will not be possible even by him. It will remain incomplete and unfinished From these observations it is clear that God certainly exists, there is not the slightest doubt about His existence; this conclusion is quite unshakable. Therefore, when a person has taken to the practice of a discipline by forming a certain conviction about God in his mind, there is no

As a matter of fact, the reality about God is seed to alter the same, but some improvement in the conviction should, of course, be made. Truly specking, none of those, who are engaged in the practice of a discipline, is in error, and from another point of view, all are in error. He who starts the practice of a discipline for the reluxation of God follows a path which leads to God, therefore he is not in error, and yet he is in error, because whatever conception he has formed in the mind about the object of attainment, or goal of the practice, the reality is far, far different from it. That which is known, conceived oi, and for which a practice is under-ness of the moon, nor are they as larce as it is, nor rossess its other various. Even so, God may be seen or realized when observed with the help of symbols. But the difference between the symbol and the resulty of God is as great as the difference between the mean and the symbols was to indicate it. It may, indeed, be nowhelf or a Yogl to acquaint us with the actual nature of the moon, but none can describe the realist about God, for it is not a thing which can be mide subject to apeech. It is known only when catually realized, He also who realizes it is not able to explain it. This is so far as the Reality is concerned.

Now, it is proposed to explain what should be the object of meditation of the practicant, and how it can be comprehended. What I heard on this subject from saints, or gathered from a study and hearing of the scripiters, and what conviction has got family rooted in me through settial experience, will be placed before the reader. Whoever desires may but them into practice.

Meditation on the real Form of God is not actually possible. So long as the eyes, mind and the intellect have no direct experience of God, whatever meditation is practised as bised only on inference. But when this is done according to the instruction of saints or the scriptures, or taking a picture or image as model, it is possible for a practicant to realize God. It has both is the same, deflecences lie only in the procedure of practice. Practicants should, therefore, meditate on either the Umanilest or Manilest aspect, according to their naclination or likeng.

It worshippers of the Ummailiest aspect of God meditate on the Ummailiest without currying in their mind the idea of the Manifest, there can be no objection, but if they earry so meditation on the Ummailiest, thoroughly realizing the truth about the Manifest, recarding Him as all-pervading and all-formed, their efforts will more quickly best fruit. Success will be somewhat delayed if there is want of revlication of the truth about the Manifest aspect of God.

of imiliarly, there is seed for the worthlipsets of the Manifest aspect to know the truth about the Usmanifest, all-pervading Brahma. This will make his auccess easier and quieter. In the GRA, the Lord has extelled the practice of meditation done with a knowledge of His Glory.

सरवादेश्य सची वे भौ निष्युक्त दशस्ते। स्रवण परवीरेतास्ते से युक्तमा स्रतः॥

"I consider them to be the best Yogts who, endowed with uppreme faith, and ever united through meditation with Me, worship Me with the mind centred on Me."

[&]quot;That is to say, those who constantly worthly 'Me' (Personal God) on the lanes land down in the Gud chapter XI verse $5.

As a matter of fact, meditation done on the Manifest aspect, realiting the glory of the Unmanifest, is the best and essient discipline for the quick realization of God. The reality about God is, however, different from both those aspects.

and cannot be meditated upon There are several processes of meditation on the Umanniest. The practicant should adopt for himself-whitever process appears easy for him. The result of all is the same. Some of these processes are being described below.

Following the directions given in the GLA, chapter VI, verses It to 13, the practicant should spend at least three hours regularly every day in the practice of meditation in a solitary place, laking his seat either in the Swastika or Siddha posture, fixing his gare at the tip of the nose, or closing the eyes (as it suits him) If he cannot devote three hours to the practice, let him devote two hours; if he cannot devote two hours, let him devote at least one hour without fail. In the heginning, if his mind runs away from the practice, he may start with fifteen or twenty minutes, and gradually increase the time-Practice of meditation for three hours is indispensable for practicants who desire God-realizations.

twenty minutes, and granually interests is indispensable for practicents who desire God-calization quickly. Practice of Japa of the Divine Name renders exceptional help during meditation. All names of God are equally efficacious but in the path of meditation on the Unmanifest aspect, precedence is given to Om. Maharji

Patanjali says in his Yoga-Daršana-

त्रस्य वासकः प्रयक्तः । सम्प्रस्तर्यभावनम् ।

(L 27-28)

"Om is synonymous with Rim. Japs of this should be performed, and its meaning (God) should be meditated upon."

These two aphorisms are based on the aphorism stratification. It is a proper a surrender to God The first aphorism quoted above declares the Name of God, and the account advises practice of Japa of the Name and meditation on the Divine Form.

I do not propose here to enter on a discussion on the other views of Maharji Patafalji on God. My intention is only to point out that, according to Patafalji, meditation on the Form should be carried on together with Japa of the Divine Name, in order to fix the mind on the object on meditation. If any practicant utters 'Anadamaya' (Embodiment of Bliss), or 'Vijōānānaudaghana' (Solid Form of Knowledge and Bliss) in the place of Orn, there is nothing to object, Differences lie only in the Names; there is no difference in the result

The best type of Japa is that which is performed by the mind, and which does not require the tougue to move, or the lips to utter any word. During the performance of this type of Japa, the processes of meditation and Japa may proceed together. Of the four aspects of the Anthhatana (internal organ of prereption and cognition), the mind and intellect are the chief. Determining, first, through the intellect, the Form of God, let the intellect he steadied on it, and then let the mind repeat, again and again, the name of 'Anandamaya' the all-pervading embodiment of Bliss, This is Japa and meditation, both combined. As a matter of fact, there is no special difference between the Japa of 'Anandamaya' and meditation on the same. Both Japa and meditation may be carried on simultaneously. The second process is practice of Japa with the breath. In this process, Japa of the Name is performed through the threat in rhythm with the ingoing and outgoing breath-In other words, the Name is repeated with the breath, stopping the tongue and lips altogether-This is Japa through the Prana, or vital air, it is also called worship through the vital air. This form of Japa also is of a superior type. If this practice does not become possible, let the mind be devoted to meditation, and the tongue to utterance of the Name: hut in my opinion practice of Japa through the breath will be both easier and more profitable to the practicant. This is so far as Japa is concerned; strictly speaking, Japa should be practised during both the types of meditation, viz., meditation on the Unmanifest as well as on the Manifest. Now we shall deal with meditation on the Unmanifest aspect of God Retiring to a solitary place, and steadying himself in his seat. Iet the practicant practise as follows with a concentrated mind. Regarding all things appearing to his senses and mind as illusory, let him go on renouncing the same. Whatever appears to him, let him regard the same as non-existent. Let bim feel that the gross physical body, the senses of perception, mind and intellect, all are non-existent, thus negating everything, finally the faculty of negation of the negativing subject, that is, the faculty which negatives objects will also become silent and still (That faculty of negation is also callled Knowledge, discrimination and cognition or Pratyaya, these are all functions of the onre Intellect The Intellect which meditates on God, and negatives all other objects, by saving, 'Not this, Not this,' is its substratum and this is what is meant by 'नेति, नेति' in the Vedas. That faculty does not require to be renounced. it becomes quiet automatically. For in the act of renunciation, the three dimensional experience between the subject, object and act of jenuneiation is bound to appear. That is why active fenunciation is not possible in that state, and st takes place automatically. Just as want of fuel will make the fire still, even so in the absence of objects, the faculties of cognition will get wholly still. Then, whatever remains as residue is God in His reality This is called seedless Samadhs.

tion, the subject, or the renouncer, remains. He is small, and God is great. How can that residue be described as God? The question is, no doubt, relevant; but the residue is small, so long as regarding itself as confined to a limited space, it regards the whole space external to it as full of others. When all other objects are fully negatived, what remains as the final residue is nothing but God and God alone. When the objective world is pulled up by the roots and thrown away (from consciousness), automatically God alone remains When the limitations are destroyed, all differences and divisions cease to exist, and one infinite God is left as remainder who fills up everywhere, and pervades all time and space. In reality, time and space also are fancied in Him. He is the one substance, standing by Himself, indescribable and incooceivable. When all thoughts are wholly renounced, it is then that the hidden store of inconcervable Brahma reveals itself, and the practicant gets mingled with it. So long as under the shelter of Ignorance, other objects remained, that store remained hidden from view. With the cessation of Ignorance, one substance alone is left hehind; under the eircumstance, absorption in that substance in other words, the existence of one object, after all thoughts are stilled, is incontrovertible.

Here it may be urged that after renuncia

The sky within the pot is separated from the broad, external sky, so long as the pot is not broken. The breaking of the pot is synonymous with the destruction of Ignorance; but this example also does not wholly cover the point. For when the pot is broken to pieces, its broken parts cover some portion of the sky But when Icnorance is destroyed, nothing is left to screen even the least part of Knowledge. With the removal of error, the world wholly ceases to be. Then, what is left as remainder is Brahma. The sky within the rot, in this example, is the Jiva, or individual soul, and the wide, external sky is God. When the limitation in the form of the pot is broken, the two become one. They were one even before, but appeared as different owing to the harriers created by the limitations.

Really speaking, the example of the sky is not entirely applicable in the case of God. The sky is lanet; God is not inert. The sky is an object of sight, God is no such object. The sky is an object of sight, God is no such object. The sky is not everlasting, it is destroyed during final Dissolution (Mahapralaya); God is everlasting, eternal. The sky is void, it contains every other thing; God is compact and solid, other things can have no place in Him. Thus, God is wholly different from the sky. In a part of Brahma lies Maya, which is called unmanifest Prakting a part of Maya lies Mahat-Tattva (Universal Intellect) from which is derived the intellect of others. In a part of that Intellect is the Foo-others.

That is why the example of the sky cannot be fully applied in the case of God. It is true only to this extent, that just as the sky appears formless to the eye of man, even so not be fully applied in the case of God. It is true only to this extent, that just as the sky appears formless to the eye of man, even so Brahma is really formless or Unmanifest. Just as the sky, appears infinite to the eye of man, even so Brahma is True and Infinite The example of the sky is cited in order to make these ideas conform to the human intellect. When all those things are negatived, what is left as the remainder, none ear describe its character; it is an exceptional, extraordinary thing. Saints possessed of subtle vision, who have realized the subtle nature of things, call it as indequagramy—Brahma, who is Truth, Conviciousress and Infinity' He is boundless.

embodument of Bliss, Happiness itself, true and eternal Thee are the attributes to indicate that extraordinary thing. When he is realized, mar gets over the risk of any fall. Mixery, pain, evil grief, limitation, distraction, sturarine and sur-all these impurities cease entirely for all time. There is full dawning of one Brahm who is Trath, Knowledge, Consciousness and Bliss. The word dawning is assed only to convey a fain impression. What actually happens cannot be as a matter of fact, expressed in words.

In this process, separateness remains during the period of practice, and at the stage of alization identity with God is established God ves up His thought, therefore He alone remains. his is one process. Resides this, there are other ocesses of meditation on the Unmanifest, two which have been described in the chapter on Means of Realization of True Happiness" to hich the reader is referred. In short, there are wo methods of meditation on the Unmanifest, iz, through the conceptions of separateness and lentity. The fruit of both the methods is Godlealization in identity. Those who regarding the Iva (individual soul) as finite do not concerve ever identical with God, attain liberation nited type. They do not attain eternal m. After Universal Dissolution, they have -rn. According to this theory of Liberation, hey remain separate even after the attainment of Brahma.

Now, the subject of meditation on the Manifest will be death with. The fruit of worship of the Manifest may be of both the types If the practicant seeks immediate Liberation, or complete union with Pure Brahma, he may attain such union, or immediate Liberation. But if he wants that becoming a servant, soociate or friend, he should enjoy Divine Love by living near God, or maintaining his separate individuality serve God by preaching in the world the message of Divine Love, in that case he may attain, according to his desire, any of the types of ilberation known as Salokva [residence with

How God assumes the Manifest Form for the Sake of Devotees

God, the embodiment of Existence, Knowledge and Bliss, in His eternal, boundless aspect pervades everywhere. Fire may be mentioned as an analogous example. In its unmanifest state, Fire is present everywhere, and becomes manifest when effort is made towards it, with the belp of materials which can bring it into manifestation. When manifested, the form of the Fire appears equal in length and breadth to the wood through which it is manifested. Even so, according to the wish of the devotee, all-pervading, invisible, subtle, and Formless God reveals Himself by assuming a Form. In reality, the example of the pervasiveness of Fire also is imperfect; for where there is only ether and air, Fire does not exist, but God is present everywhere completely. Therefore, the pervasiveness of God is superior to all, and usextraordinary. There is no place where Go not. And in the whole of creation there is such spot where God's Maya is not press. Where there are time and space, Maya is the God can, therefore, reveal Himself anywhere likes, through this material in the form Maya. Where there is water as well as cice may be formed. It is possible that though present in Kirtan in lis Manifest Form, God is not actually seen by a person nevertheless it is conducive to spiritual good o cultivate the faith that Reis Himself present there.

God ean manifest Himself when Ife likes, vherever He likes, and in whatever Form He likes, ecording to the wish of the devotee; therefore whatever Form the devotee meditates upon, the result s the same. He may meditate either on Bhagavan or Krana, the embodiment of blue-coloured Beauty dorned with a crown containing the peacock eather, or on Bhagavan Srl Rama armed with the low and arrow, the Best Person who established propriety of conduct. He may meditate either of Shagavan Sri Visnu, holding the conch, the ircular weapon Chakra, the club and the lotus or on the Universal Form of God. It is all the ame. Whatever Form one meditates upor hould be regarded as the fullest manifestation of God. Similarly, Japa also may be performed eccording to one's taste and liking, of Omlama, Krona, Hari, Narayana, Siva, or any ther Divine Name; the result of all is the ame. Some processes of meditation on God's Form vith attributes have been described in the chapter on "Lessons in Devotion and Divine Love" and True Happiness-the Means of its Realization." The attention of the reader is drawn to them.

The original of these two articles in Hinds base beef eprinted as bookless and may be had from the Gita Press.

" Now," it is proposed to say something about the Universal form of God. The Form which the Lord revealed before Ariuna was no doubt His Universal Form, and this Universe itself described in the Vedas as Bhills, Bhuvals, Swah (the earth, the intermediate region and beaven) is also the Lord's Universal Form, Both are the same. The entire Universe itself is God's Form, In everything movable and immovable. God is present, To respect and serve the Universe regarding it as God's Form, means offering of respect and service to God flimself in His Universal Form The imperfections and impurities of the Universe are not present in God These are mere sports like the play of the magician. The name and form-all are sports. God ever exists in His own state of being. Like water in the ice, He in His ummanifest state fills everywhere. The water itself is seen as the solid mass of ice; in reality it is nothing. Even so, the Universe is seen in pure Brahma; as a matter of fact, it does not exist.

In His Sagupa aspect, like the Fire, even though unmanifest, He is all-pervading; He can manifest Himself whenever He likes, This is what has been stated above. This all-pervading God is called Vispu. The word Vispu itself means all-pervading. God is above the Gunas, is endowed with all Gunas, good and bad, and is possessed of only virtuous Gunas

No Guna exists in God, He is above ti unas; all Gunas, good and bad, exist in Hi ain, He is possessed only of virtues, there trace of vice in Him—all these thri tetements may be made with reference to Go is subject should be properly understood.

The reality about pure Brahma, Ummanifes and Blis d all-pervading God, is wholly beyond all thins. All virtues and vices in the work ginate from Sattva, Rejas and Tamas. Sattva, Rejas if Tamas—these three Gupas are included if ya, that is why the latter is called May sisting of the three Gupas. Among then two is best, Rajas is intermediate, and Tamas—lowest. God is exceptionally different from S Maya, wholly beyond and free from the past that is why He is called Pure. Therefore, is shove the Gupas.

Maya does not exist in reality; when her stence is conceived of, it is only an imaginan. She is fancied to exist in a part of God.
tues and vices all take place in Maya. Accordto this resoning, the entire world consistof virtues like truth, compassion, renuclavirtues like truth, expension, tenuclater, greed, indituation, etc., is superimpased on

God. That is why all virtues and vices may be regarded as established in Him. Under the circumstance, He may be described as endow with all Gupas, good and bad.

God, the Creator, or Brahma qualified Maya, in whom this Universe is included, is re different from Pure Brahms: He manife Himself subordinature Maya, and incarna Himself on earth from time to time. That why He is called 'qualified by Maya'. In the CMs it is studed—

भ तोऽपि सद्यस्ययात्मा भूतानामी बरोऽपि सन् । अरुति स्वयाधिकायः सम्भवस्यासमायाः ॥

"Though unborn and immortal, and also Lord of all belogs, I manifest My through My own Progamsys (dwine potent keeping My Nature (Prakpti) un control."

Just as God incarnates Himself on eaven so He manifests Himself in the beginn of creation, subordunating Maya to Himself in the Companies of t resemble one another in nature and are equals. That is why devotees who possess the divine rithers, are said to be the proper persons to rain the vision of God. The Saguna aspect of God, qualified by Maya, comes down on earth, rom time to time, together with Maya. He is possessed of all virtues: He is pure, free, Lord nd all-powerful. There is nothing which He annot perform. That is why, though in reality lajas and Tamas do not exist in that mbodiment of pure Sativa, the Siguna, Manifest orm of God, nevertheless He can perform acts hich are expressions of Raias and Tamas. hagavan Visnu is observed to perform acts of iolence in the course of chastisement of the icked. From the human stand point, this may appear s violence or a manifestation of Tamas, but as # atter of fact violence has no place in Him. Being se dispenser of justice, He has to act according to ie eircumstance. King Janaka was a liberated oul, and was exceptionly Sattvie in nature, ut being a ruler, administration of justice was s function. He had even to inflict punishment thieves. There is nothing objectionable in is. The mother in order to train up her dear ild threatens it, and now and then, when e finds it necessary, gives a slap of two, with heart full of thoughts of the child's welfare, it the act is an expression of her compassion r the child. Even so, the chastisement of God, e Ocean of mercy, the Executor of Justice, is so full of compassion. The Kama, or desire, sanctioned by Dharma is also God. The Lord said:-

धमीविरुद्धी भृतेषु कामीऽसि भरतपेम।

The desire smortioned by Dharma is He, no the sinful desire. God is Sat 1 good l, He i Sattvic He is Purc Sattva. He is endowed wit the purc, Sattvic Vidya (Knowledge) of Mayi The Jiva is endowed with Avrdya or lenoranc In Vidya, there is Knowledge and Light, Ho can vice and darkness find any place there to this reasoning, God is endowed with put unadulterated virtue.

The above discussion proves that God mi be described as beyond the Gupas, as endow with both virtue and vice, and also as endow with pure, unadulterated Sattragupa.

Vice lies with Avidya or Ignorance, According

The Reality about God or Union of the Ummanife

There are three states of the body—types, subtle and causal. The body which seen through the eyes is the gross body, the which goes to the other world after death is t subtle body, and that which gets absorbed Maya is the causal body. These three division the body can be seen even every day.

the waking state, the gross body functions, the dream state, the subtle body, and in de sleep, the causal body remain. Similarly, G also may be described to possess three states. Final Dissolution is the causal hody of God; the whole universe gets its solved into it and remains there. At that time God and His Prakţti alone remain; all ivas get absorbed into Prakţti. In Jiyas also.

consciousness is the part of God, and Ignorance in the part of Prakṛti. Owing to identification the Māyā, Jīyas do not get therated even during inal Dissolution. After that, in the beginning fance creation, they wake up according to lear respective Karmas, like men waking up from eep. In this way, the form of God during Final issolution may be described as His causal form-The subtle form of God is present everywhere:

here are parts of both Praketi and Purusa.

e is called the First or Primal Person. He is e original cause of Creation. His name is reupottama, the Best Person, and God, the creator. In his gross form, God eternally exist in is Supreme Ahode as Bhagavan Vistou, the ider of the conch, the circular weapon Chakrs, e club and the lotus.

According to the very conception of the votce God assumes His Form. The whole of is Universe is God's Rody, and our bodies are luded in that Body. According to this tument we all exist in Him.

There is another truth which should be sperly understood. When the sky is clear and the sun is up nothing is observed in the sky between the sun and us, nevertheless there is existence of water there. It will have to be agreed that between the sun and us, the region is full of water, but that water cannot be seen because it exists in the subtle or atomic state. When it becomes thicker, it begins to manifest itself. Vapour is produced by the heat of the sun, when that vapour becomes thicker it is transformed into cloud and the cloud is transformed into water. When the cloud passes a high hill. the visitor to the bill will get his clothes wet even though there may be no rain When water particles become thicker in the cloud, drops are formed, and when thicker still, bails are formed and rained down on earth. That very hail or ice when touched by heat gets dissolved into water. and greater heat reduces it to vapour, which rising to the sky gets out of sight. Thus, finally, water is reduced to its atomic unmanifest state. These very subtle atoms of water cannot be seen even with the help of a powerful lens that magnifies objects a thousand times. But water certainly exists in that states if it did not wherefrom does it come?

The reality about God should be understood with the help of this example. It is said in the Gifa-

असरं ग्रह्म परमं स्वभावोऽध्यासमुख्यते । भूतम।वोद्रवकरो विसर्थः कर्मसङ्गितः॥ भिषमूर्ग भरो भावः पुरुपश्राविदेवतम्। भिषयज्ञाऽहमेषात्र देहे देहसूतो वर ॥ (VIIL ३४)

Of the seven questions of Arjuna, the sixth was this: What is Brahma? What is Adhyatma? What is Karma? What is Adhibitat? What is Adminata? What is Adhibitat? What is Adhibitat? What is Adhibitat? What is Adhibitat. The support of the support of the questions. He said the support of large and the support of the support

This may he understood as follows with e help of the above example.

- (1) In the place of the atomic state of water—

The collection of seventeen Tattvas is called subtles among these Tattvas Prana, or vital air, is the chief The Praquas of all heings combined make the Universal Prana; this Universal Prana remains during Pralaya, or partial destruction, but not during final dissolution. The aggregate of severteen Tattvas makes the subtle body of Hiranyagarbha

> (4) The drops of water in lakhs and crores— The Jivas of the world.

(5) Rain-The action of the Hyas.

Brahmā.

(6) Hail or Ice--

The grossest form of the five elements,

The state of this creation is so very gross and transient that the slightest heat will immediately dissolve it, like half dissolved into water. Heat, in this example, is that luminous flame of wisdom which when produced dissolves the gross creation in the form of half.

Ignorance is the same as cold. Whatever the amount of Ignorance, such is grossness; whatever the amount of Knowledge, such is subtlety. The greater the weight of a thing, the lower it falls; the lighter it is, the higher

it rises Ignorance is weight; when water is extremely gross and becomes ice it has to go down; even so the Jiva hecoming gross through the weight of Ignorance has to go down.

As soon as the heat of Knowledge is obtained, the weight of the world goes down one's back. Just as when greater heat is applied to water, it becomes vapour and goes up, even so the Ifva goes up.

The Jivatma (individual soul) is identical with God Himself, but when it becomes gross through inertix and Ignorance, it suffers a fall. Ignorance is the cause of descent, and Knowledge is the cause of ascent. When it once rises to the last limit of ascent, the Jivatma does not again, suffer a intl. In its conception, everything, becomes God Himself and in realize all its but is the cause of ascent. When it once rises to the last limit of ascent, the Jivatima does not again, suffer a isli. In its conception, everythins, hecomes God Himselfi and, in reality, all is but one. Atom, vapour, cloud, drop of rain and hail—all this is nothing hut water. According to this argument, all objects are in reality God, that is why God manifests

Himself in whatever manner He likes, whenever He likes, wherever and in whatever turn He likes. When this Knowledge is gained, the practicant sees God alone everywhere. Water is seen everywhere, when the truth about water is known: in the atom it is water, in the hall it is a.a. In the subflest state it is water, as well is in the grussest. Even so, one God alone saists in all subtle and gross objects.

'सम्बंदलीयान् सदनी सदीवान ।'

This is union between the Unmanifest and the Manifest.

Egoism grows through ignorance; the more there is of Egoism, the more will one take to objects of the world. The more there is the weight of worldly possessions, the more will one go down. There are three Gupas, among them Tamogupa is the heaviest, that is why the person possessed of Tamogupa falls low. Rajogupa is of medium weight, that is why the being possessed of Rajogupa remains among men, in the middle. Sattraguna is light, and the person possessed of Sattragupa goes up towards God

'कृष्वं गरउन्ति सखस्याः' 'अष्ये तिष्टन्ति राजसाः' 'अष्ये गरवन्ति रामसाः'

Light things float on the surface, beavy blings get submerged. The demoniac qualities are the marks of Tamoguna, that is why they take one down. Sattwaguna being light takes one up. The divine qualities are the marks of Sattwaguna, they are the possessions of God. The more these possessions increase, the more the practicant goes up nearer to God.

In this way, one and the same God should be regarded as pervading all gross and subtle objects.

सर्थतःप्राणियार्वं सत्मर्थतोऽश्लिकीसुम्बम् । सर्थतःश्रुतिमङ्कोके सर्वमाषुष्य तिष्टति ॥ (GIG. XIII. IS)

What is the character of that object of inowledge? He is possessed of hands and feet a all sides, eyes on all sides, head, face and ars on all sides. There is no place where He not, no sound which He does not hear, no ght which He does not take, and no region where He does not take, and no region where He is no access.

We offer Him estables and He immediately its them. We offer Him praises, and He bears em. He sees everyone of our acts, but we anot see Him. With reference to this the testion arises, how do all the senses of the me Person remain everywhere? How does the se remain where the ears are. In reply, it ay be said that the objection is no doubt evant, but the case of God is different from is. His is a transcendent power, and everything possible in His case. Imagine a heap of gold which rings, bracelets, necklaces and other naments are everywhere present, and all those ngs can be obtained from whatever point, one es. Even so, God alone is such in Whom all ngs are everywhere present, and everything proceed from Him, Who can hear, all at once, words uttered at all places by everyone and who can see everyone, all at once.

"In the state of dream, though there are no eyes, ears, nose, etc, the mind itself does every act, and itself sees and bears. It itself acts as the seer, seeing and the object of such. Even so, the power of God is most extraordinary. It is capable in every way of doing everything at every place. This constitutes His Divinity and Universality.

This Universe constitutes the Body of God in His Manifest aspect. Just as ice is the rolld form of water, but not essentially different from it, is the Universe also just like that? Is the physical body also God?

The reply to this may be given by saying both 'yes' and 'no'. Il anyone serves this body and gives comfort to it, I regard it as my service and my comfort, but as a matter of fact I am not the body. I am the soul. But so long, as I call this body of three and a hall cubits as 'l', I am the body, Under the circumstance, the whole of summate and inanimate creation is G.d. all should render at service, its service is the service of God, and to make the would bappy is bringing bappiness to God. And when I am not the physical body, the Universe, as the body, also is not God. So long as this body is mine, that Body is God's. So long as we are His parts, He is the whole. But, really, in the end, it is proved that we are the soul, and not the body. But till it is not so, should proceed precisely as above. When the Knowledge is gained, one, taintless Brahma all will remain.

From this point of view, the Unmanifest aspects of God are one and the sat The world is a superimposition on God. To Mahatmas say that it is file the conception the snake in the rope; in reality it does a exist. The world in the dream state appearance. Even so, the world is an appearance for the Mahatmas alone know the truth abo it. After awakening, it is the awakened so; it. After awakening, it is the awakened so which truly realizes the falsity of the drear world. So long as this is not realized, mean should he adopted. The means is this—

Through meditation of either the Unmanifest or Manifest form, whatever one and onle one supreme object is realized, surrendering oneself to that God, from every point of view service should be rendered to Him through the senses and the body. Remembrance of Him through the mind, atterance of His Name through the breath, hearing of His glory through the ears, making the body act according to this dictates—these are His service; the practice of this is true Devottoin and through this alone

Means of Attaining Kalyana (Blessedness)

The state of salvation (Mukti) is colled Kalyana (blessedness). It significs attainment of the supreme state or supreme condition. To attain blessedness, three means are primary—Disinterested Action (Karmayoca), Knowledge (Jñana or Sankhyayoga), and Devotion (Bhakti or Dhyanayoga). Among them, Devotion may be practised both as a separate discipline as well as with the practices of Disinterested Action (Karmayoca) and Knowledge (Sankhyayora).

Karmayoga has been described in detail in the GitJ, Chap. II, verses 39 to 53, and the marks of the person who has attained perfection through its practice have been described in verses 54 to 72 of the same chapter.

Jiānayoga has been described at length in chapter II, verses 11 to 30, and, according to it, in chapter III, verse 28, chapter V, verses 8 and 9, and ehapter XIV, verse 19,—the mode of action of the Jiānayogl has been given. Besides this, chapter V, verses 13 to 26 describe Jiāna (Xnowledge), and chapter XVIII, verses 49 to 55 describe the practice of Jiānayoga together with Devotion.

What a divine teaching I Besides, among dariama by Patañjah is the principal hook on Dhyanayoga and Bhaktiyoga, Fofadariam by Patañjah is the principal hook on Dhyanayoga, and the Aphorisms of Narada and Sandilya are the principal books on Bhaktiyoga. There are, no doubt, some differences of opinion in these hooks but Bhaktiyoga is the subject which they expound. Through their study, a good deal of knowledge on Bhaktiyoga may be obtained.

Instead of writing at length, I have only given some bints to the reader by quoting some verses of the Gilā, and giving only the numbers of certain other verses. In my opinion if any reader reflecting on the meaning of these verses begins to regulate his life according to them, the supremely hlessed state of salvation may be very easily attained by him.

The Philosophy of Blessedness

Everlasting freedom from all sorts of pains, passions, qualities and actions, and consequent realization of God Who is an embodiment of Supreme Knowledge and Bliss and is Blessedness personified, constitute the highest Bessing. It is variously termed as Mukti (emancipation), attainment of the Highest Pedestal of Glory (wareas), latenature to the Highest Pedestal of Glory (wareas) and liberation (was), Every human being is eligible for this state of perfection. The Lord has made the following reassuring proclamation in the Bhacavadrisis—

मां द्वि पार्थं व्यथाधिस्य वेऽपि स्तुः पापयोनयः। द्वियो वैद्याक्षयः श्रुदास्तेऽपि वान्ति परां शतिम् ॥

"Arjuna, womanfolk, Vaisyae (members of the trading class). Siddres (those belonging to the labouring class), and even those that are born of the womb of sin (such as the Pariab), taking refuge in Me, they too stiain the supreme coal." Hence he alime realizes the goal of human existence who is freed from the round of birth and death by practising devotion to God and meditating on Him and attains the highest abode of God.

A number of misguided statements are made with regard to salvation, of which the following three are more remarkable:—

- (1) That it is not possible to attain salvation in the present age and on this globe and that householders and lowborn classes are not eligible for liberation,
- (2) That liberated souls are reborn into this world after enjoying beatitude for a considerable length of time;
- (3) That liberatinn is an offspring of enlightenment (viv). One can be liberated during his lifetime after such wisdom has dawned on him, even though his mind may continue to be swayed by passions such as lust, anger and vices like mendacity, thievish intent and an inclination to practise adultery. The aforesaid evil tendencies are essential properties of the mind and they must inevitably persist so long as the mind is there, as a result of the force of past actions that have begun to fructify.

All these theories are neither correct nor heneficial and reasonable. On the contrary, they are very barmful and give tise to misconceptions. Hence we shall discuss these points serialim. (1) Mukti (liberation) is brought about by Self-Realization (mpasta) and the Vedas and other scriptures have prescribed various methods fo attaining it, such as Disinterested Action (किया क्सेयोव), Meditation (क्यानवीच) and Knowledge of Sel (बानवीन), etc., which can be easily practised a all times and in all climes.

Attainment of liberation has not bee restricted to a particular age, clime, caste or orde

Mukti can be attained at all times and in all elimes an isopen to all classes and orders provided one is endowe with certain equipments (everyw). The above anoted verse of Srimad Bhagaradgua also corr borates this statement. Nowhere in the Srut or Smrtis has the Kalı Age or this land of ou or any particular caste or order been declaras debarred from Mukts. The lives of saints as holy men that have flourished upto the rece times also prove that Muku can be attained wi necessary efforts by aspirants belonging Visnu Purana-every land, age, class and order. We read in t Once upon a time there was a great or troversy among the Rsis or seers of old as the period when even a little practice of virt would bring forth immense wholesome results. last they all approached the sage Vedavyasa a body for obtaining a categorieal reply to t ablution in the sacred river Bhagirath (Ganges) and the other sages walted for him under the shade of trees on the hank of the river. Shortly afterwards the sage came out of water and made the following utterances within the hearing of the seers.—"The Kall Age is truly blessed. O Sūdras, you are blessed indeed. Women, you are the most blessed of all, there is no one more blessed than you." The sages were greatly astonished to hear this and they out of curiosity enquired of Vyasadeva the meaning of this strange utterance. The sage replied that this was in reply to the question which had been engaging their minds at that moment. Mukti can he attained with very little exection in the Kall Age as well question. The sage was at that time having his स्वलेन दि प्रपत्नेन घर्मः सिद्धपति ये कवी । भरेरातमगुणामोनिः क्षाविकाशिकविक्षेत्र थेः ॥ इद्भित्न द्वित्र प्रकृष्णाकार्य श्रेतिसत्त्रमाः । तथा स्वीभिरतायसार्यातिग्रपृषये दि ॥ तत्तिकारमप्येतमम सम्पत्रमं सत्त् । (Vimuburāna. VI. zl. 24—26)

as by Sudras and the womaniols. In other ages and among other classes and men very little is accomplished through great efforts, whereas:—

"O sages, in this Kall Age one is absolved of all sins with a little effort only by resorting to good behaviour and attains the object of Dharma. A Sadra can easily stain twiceborn classes (Brahmans, Kaatriyas and Vaifyas), and women by serving their hushards. Hence I look upon all these three as the most blessed."

Thus it is proved that in the present age and for womeo and Sudras the path of salvation is easier still.

Even if it be granted for a moment that Mukti cannot be attained to the present age and is not within the reach of every class and order and that those who are zealously striving for Mukti are under a delusion, one cannot persuade himself to believe that the delusion under which they are labouring is in any way harmful to them. Even if they do not succeed in securing liberation their efforts are sure to be rewarded with good results. They will at least have their Sattva element increased and their beart purified and their divine virtues unfolded. If Mukti is impossible of achievement, it will come neither to one who strives for it nor to him who makes no effort to attaio it, but the former will have his noble qualities developed through practice whereas the one who makes on effort will remain where he is. If, on the other hand, it were possible for everyone to seeme liberation even in the present age, the one who strives for it will get it, whereas, the one who makes no eodeavour to attain it will be shut out of it. How will be be able to attain liberation when he does not strive for it. Thus he will be debarred from this supreme gain through a misconception and will be repeatedly thrown into the whirdpool of burth and death. Hence according to this argument as well it is but reasonable, profitable and logical to believe that Mukti can he easily attained at every time and in every clime and is open to every class and order

(2) Nowhere in the Srutis, Smrtis. Upanisads and other scriptures do we find a statement supporting the theory that even liberated souls return to this world. Only those noble souls who perform meritorious deeds with some object in view and attain heavenly bliss by vitrue of their mentiorious deeds return to this mortal world. The Lord has said:—

वैविद्या मी सोमपाः पूनपापा वदीरिद्रा स्थांति प्रार्थवन्ते।

ते पुण्यसासाच गुरेन्द्रकोक-सम्रति दिवयानित्तवि देवभोगान् ॥

सम्रक्ति दिवयान्दिवि देवभोगाण् । ते सं भरण्या न्वर्गकोकं विशालं

त स मुक्त्या स्वराकोक विशालि श्लीये पुत्रवे सम्बैकोकं विशालितः। वृत्रं त्रयीधर्मसमुख्यकाः

गतायनं कामदामा कथन्ते॥

(Unit, IX. 20.21)

"Those who perform action with some interest ed motive se laid down in the three Yeha and drink the sap of Some plant, and have three been purged of sin, worshipping Me through sperifices, seek access to heaven staturing Inder's paradise as the result of their good deeds, they cojoy the celestial pleasures in heaven

"Having colored the extensive heaven world, they return to this world of mortain on the stock of their merits being exhausted. Thus taking recourse to action with interested motive enjoined by the three Vedas (as the means of attaining heavenly bliss), and teaking worldly enjoyments, they repeatedly come and go. (t. a., ascend heaven by witch of their meritorious deeds and return to cartis when their fruit has been enjoyed)."

There are numerous evidences in the Srutis and Smrtis to show that liberated souls do not return to this world. The Lord has said in the Gua-

भावताभुवनाहोकाः पुनरावर्तिनोऽर्तुन । सामुपेख तु कीमोय पुनर्जन्म न विचते ॥

(VIN 16)

"Arinos, all the worlds from Brahmaloka (the abode of Brahma) downwards are sobject to uppersone and disappearance. Bot, 0 son of fauti, on attaining Me there is no rebirth (For I am beyond time, and regious like Brahmaloka, being subject to time, are impermanent, 1"

The following Stutis are also too well-known-

"न स पुनरावर्तते, न स पुनरावर्तते।" "तैपामिद्द न पुनरावृत्तिः ॥"

The above scriptural texts clearly prove that liberated souls sever return to this world.

All sorts of actions appear as being duly is torned by liberated souts in the eyes of world; but in reality they have nothing to with those actions:--- पस्य सर्वे भसारभ्याः कामयंक्रशर्वाजनाः । ज्ञानाधिरस्थकर्माणं तमाद्वः पण्डितं सुद्याः ॥ (Gua, IV.

पस्य माईश्रो भावो बुद्धिर्यस्य न लिप्यते । इस्वादि स इमोहिकाल इन्ति भ निक्यते ॥ (अ.स. ११४८)

"He whose undertakings are all free fire desire and thoughts of the world, as whose actions are burnt up by the fire wiedom him even the wise call a sage." "He whose mind is free from the notion doership and whose reason is not effect by worldly objects and worldly activities even though he may kill all these possible.

he does not kill, nor is he hound (by sin).

Moreover, nothing remains in the eyes of that liberated soul besides one pure Divine Substance which is a mass of Intelligence and Bliss:-

वासुदेवः सर्वमिति संगदातमा सुदुर्लगः॥

(Cut, VII. 19)
"In the very last of all births, the man of realization worships Ms, realizing that all this is God. Such a great soul is very rare."

He helieves that everything is Vasudeva

Hence he is called Mukta (liberated). Such a person never comes in contact with this illnsory world again; for in his eyes the world no longer exists. How can be, under such circumstances, return to this world?

Should anyone urge that il liberated souths do not return to this world a time will come when all the creatures of the world will be liberated, with the result that there will be complete essation of the universe once for all. In reply to this we say that in the first place this in not possible; for the Juberated/IN says-

सनुष्यानां सङ्घेषु कश्चिमतीतः सिक्षे । यततासपि सिक्सनो कसिन्सो वेलि सप्यतः ॥

"Of thousands of man some rare soul strives to realize Ms. of those striving Togs, again, some rere one (devoting himself expinitely to Ms) knows Ms to reality."

Under such circumstances it is impossible to all living beings to be emencipated, for there are countless in number. Nevertheless, if a day ever comes when all living beings of the entire universe may get liberated, where lies the harm? A number of exalted souls have strien for this end in ancient times. Saints are still exerting themselves to accomplish this and will continue their efforts in future as well. Should their endeavours come out successful at any time and the totality of living beings inhabiting the universe he liberated, there can be nothing like it. There is nothing in our doctrines to preclude such a possibility.

Even if we grant for argument's sake that even liberated souls have to return to this world and that those who believe otherwise are in the wrong, no harm can come to those who entertain such an erroneous helief; for, according to the above doctrine those who believe that liberated souls return to this world as well as those who do not believe like that, both will have to come back to this world. The result . will be the same for both. If, however, the theory that liberated souls do not return turns out to be correct, he who believes otherwise will be a great loser, since he will he shut out from that salvation which is immune from rebirth. The poor fellow will as & result of his erroneous helief he deharred from this highest gain while those who hold the contrary belief will be emancipated. From this consideration as well it is reasonable, profitable and hest to believe that liberated souls do not return to this world.

None of the authoritative scriptures such as the Srutis, Smrtis, Upanisads, etc. establish that one can attain liberation during one's lifetime even though his mind may continue to he swayed by passions such as lust, anger, etc. Simul Bayraraffi'l his unequivocal terms declared lust, anger and avarice to he the triple gate of heliविविधं नरकस्पेई हार्र नाशनमाध्यमः । सामः अध्यक्तपा क्षेत्रकामादिनावर्षं स्पेतेन् ॥ (XVI.31)

The dialogue between Lord Set Kṛṣṇa and Aṛṇṇas in the Btagrasfṛ/J mikes it clear that 'desire" is the seed of all sine and that an aspirant can attun liberation only by destroping it by mens of apirtual knowledge. Verses 36 to 43 of Chapter III of the Bhagaradgi/J treat of this subject in detail How can one attain liberation so long as he is not freed from passions like lust and anger, joy and sorrow. A liberated soul will have really nothing to do with > बम्बाम्मरितिरेव व्यादासम्हास मानवः । श्रामस्योदं च संबुद्धसम्ब द्वार्चं भ विधते ॥ भैव तत्त्वं कृतेनार्थां नाकृतेनेद्वं कृत्वनः । स वास्त्रं सर्वभनेत्रं कृत्विदर्धस्याद्यसः ॥

this world. The Gits says :-

(IIL 17.18)

"Me, however, who takes delight in the Self, alone and is gratified with the Self, and is contented in the Self, has no duty.

In this world that great son! has no me whatspeers for things does, nor for things not done, nor has be selfah dependence of any kind on any oreather."

The mind of a liberated soul is completely rid of all impurities and austeadiness and stripped of the veil of ignorance and becomes pure. How can under such circumstances passions like lust and anger. ioy and sorrow persist in him? The Lord has

क्षभभी नद्गतिशीतमृत्यः श्लीतकसमाः । विषयीमा यसामानः सर्वभूतदिते स्ताः स कामकावियुत्तानो यतीना यतनेतमाम् । अभिनो नद्गतिकशित वर्तते विदितासमासः स

(Gul. V. 25-26)

"The seers whose eine heve been washed away, whose doubts have been dispelled by Knowledge, whose mind is firmly established in God and who are ectivaly engaged is promoting the welfare of all belegs, etiain Brehma, who is all Peace.

To those wise men, who are free from inst and anger, who have enbdued their mind and have realized God, Brehms, the abode of eternal peace, is present all round."

Sruti texts with a with (He sheds to and sorrow), with the with the who has realized his Self overcomes grief) and so on are also well-known in this connection. The Sastras are unanimous on this point. God-Realization eradicates attachment (with), which is the very root of all passions, how can under such circumstances passions which are the outcome of attachment persist? These scriptural texts prove that it is never reasonable to believe that passions linger even in the pure heart of a liberated soal.

If it is believed that traces of passions such as lust and anger linger even after one has attained liberation during his lifetime and that those who do not believe like that are erroneously engaged in eradicating them, it should be considered whether such a wrong belief leads to any harm If we consider this question dispassionately, we would arrive at the conclusion that those who strive to eradicate lust, anger, etc. are wiser than those who do not engage in such efforts; for those who strive for it will succeed in having greater control over them and thus they will be classed as superior io the rank of Jivanmuktas. Suppose a man is very much given to lust and anger while another is altogether free from them and both of them are livanmuktas according to the theory enuneisted above. Under such circumstances it is natural that the Ifvanmukta who is free from lust anger, etc is more adorable than the one who is given to lust and anger. Even from this point of view it is advisable to eradicate lust, anger, etc. And if it he true that no trace of a passion is left in the mind of a Tivanmukta. the one who believes otherwise will not only be shut out from liberation but he will be a great loser in other ways; for (seconding to Gita XVIII 22) he will wrongly believe himself to be a Jñani (enlightened soul) and Mukta (liberated), and will be deharred from the sacred work of mending his character, and entangled in the delusive web of lust, anger, etc will be repeatedly thrown into the whirlpool of birth and death, suffering hellish tortures of various kiods (vide verses from 16 to 20 of Chapter XVI of the Gua) Hence one should recognize it as the supreme doctrine that in the mind of Jivanmukka passions such as Just and anger, jo and sorrow do not persist. People raise man more kinds of doubts about Mukti; but consider thous of space do not allow us to discuss the question any further.

The above exposition should have enable the reader to understand that a liberated soul i altogether free from the three Gunas or qualific (ride Gitä Chapter XIV, verses 19, 22-25, Henne no passuon or seed of action lingers is his mind and hence he is not reborn (in this world). It is attachment to the qualities that i responsible for rehirth. The Lord says—

पुरुषः बङ्गतिस्यो हि सुर्क् अङ्तिशान् गुणान् । फारणं गुजमङ्कोऽस्य सदसस्रोनिजन्मसु ॥ (Gus, XIII. 22)

The readers must have also understood that Mukti is not sometaing impossible to achieve in the present age. Hence we should wake up soon and apply ourselves to our duty. We have up till now wasted most of our preions time in slotb and inertia and should he wide awake now. One should not waste a single moment of his life. Time lost caunot be retrieved in any way. Hence one should child the path of salvation for humself by means of association with holy men and tread it in right carnest. This is the philosophy of bentiude!

God-Realization through Practice of Renunciation

रवस्ता क्रमंकडरसई निग्यन्ती निराधयः। क्रमंग्यभित्रवृत्तोर्थये नैव क्रिजिन्कीति सः॥ न हि देद्भृता शब्धं स्वकुं क्रमोण्यतेश्वतः। यस्त क्रमंकडरवामी स स्वामीस्पश्चित्रीयते॥

Living even the life of a householder, man can realize God through the practice of renunciation. Indeed, 'renunciation' is the principal means for attaining God. Therefore, dividing them into seven classes, the marks of renunciation are being briefly enunciated below.

(1) Total Renunciation of

Prohibited Acts

This is non-performance, in any way whatsoever, through mind, speech and the body, low acts prohibited by the scriptures, such as, theft, adultery, falsebood, deception, fraud, oppression, violence, taking of interdicted food and wrongdoing, etc.

(2) Renunciation of Acts Performed for the Satisfacton of Worldly Desires with a selfish motive, for gaining objects enjoyment, e.g., wife, progeny and wealth, et or with the object of curing diseases at terminating other forms of suffering. This is the second type of renunciation.

(3) Total Renunciation of Worldly

Thirst

Honour, fame, social prestige, wife, prozen wealth and whatever other transient objects at automatically gained by the force of Praraddi (Karma which has begun to bear fruit), the desire for their increase should be regarded an obstacle in God-Realization, and renounced This is the third type of renunciation.

(4) Renunciation of the Habit of Extracting Service from others

with a Selfish Motive

Asking for money, or demanding servic from another for personal gratification, and accef tance of articles and service given without one asking for the same, or entertaining any desirin the mind for getting by any means one.

If under the pressure of circumstances, one is compelled to do an act searctioned by tradation and the scriptures, which is by nature routed in desire, but non-priormance of which is the standard of causes pain to amphody or edwards affects the traditional of Action and Worshop, performing it distincturatedly, and for gentral good, is not an art for the satisfaction of dear.

self-interest served by another: all these and similar ideas of getting service from another for the satisfaction of self should be renounced.* This is the fourth type of renunciation.

(5) Total Renunciation of Indolence and Desire for Fruit in the Performance of Daties

Whatever duties there are, e.g., cultivation of devotion to God, worship of the celestials, service of the parents and other ciders, performance of saerifices, charities and austerities, maintenance of the household through the earning of livelihood by means of works assigned according to the Varnárama system, and taking of food and drink, etc. for the maintenance of the bodyrist the performance of these indolence and every form of desire should be renounced.

(A) Renunciation of Indolence in the Practice of Devotion to God

Practice of Devotion to God

Regarding it as the supreme duty of one's life, one should hear reflect on, read and discourse

e il non-scorpasses ol physical service from another, or affer of estables by asother, where one is cuttled to accept such acreze or office, causse pain to aryone, or in any way disturbs the social order, acceptance of service absolucing selfabanes, and only for the pleasure of the officer of service, is not harmful. For non-scorptance of service does by one's wide, non or servant, or of estables officed by fined and relatives, as likely to cause them pain and may prove harmful, in after as preparety of social caudent is concerned.

on the sublime stories of the virtue, glory and Love of God, who is extremely compassionate friend of all, the best of Lovers, the knower of the heart, and renouncing idleness practise constan Japa, together with meditation, of His extremely ballowed Name.

(B) Renunciation of Desire in the Practice of Devotion to God

Regarding all enjoyments of this world and the next as transient and perisbable and hindrances in the path of Devotion to God, no prayer should be offered to God for obtaining any object whatsoever, nor should any desire be entertained in the mind for the same. Also, prayer should not be offered to God for the removal of any trouble even when one is overtaken by it; in other words the thought should be cultivated in the mind that to sacrifice life is preferable to bringing stain on the purity of Bhakts for the sake of this false existence. For instance, Prahlada, even though intensely persecuted by his father, never offered any prayer to God for the removal of his distress. Curses with harsh expressions such as "Let the chastisement of God be on you," etc., should not be pronounced even against the persecutor, or one who does any injury, and no thought of counter-injury should be entertained against bim-

Out of pride of attainment in the path of Devotion, benedictions should not be pronounced in words, such as "May God restore you to health," "May God remove your distress," "May God grant you a long life," etc-

In correspondence also, words of worldly interest should not be used In Marwari society, there is a general custom of writing such words of worldly import in the form of prayer to God for obtaining worldly objects, e. g., "God so sur helper here and elsewhere," "God will advance our sales," "God will bring a good monsoon," "God will remove the aliment," etc. Instead of this, auspicious, disinterested words, such as "God in His state of hiss exists everywhere," "Performance of Bhajana is the only Essential duty," etc. should be employed and other than these no word of worldly interest should be written or uttered

(C) Renunciation of Indolence and Desire in Connection with the Worship

of Celestials

There is God's injunction to offer worship to the celestials, who are worthy of heiog worshipped, during the time appointed for such worship, according to the seriptures as well as tradition. Regarding the carrying out of God's behest as one's supreme duty, such worship should be offered to a celestial with enthusiasm, according to the prescribed rules, without expression of any desire for the satisfaction of any worldly interest.

With the object of such worsbip, words implying worldly interest should not be written ou the cash-hook, and other account books. For iustance, in Marwari society it is customary on the New Year or Dewali day, subsequent to the worship of Goddess Laksmi, to write many words implying worldly desire, such as "Goddess Laksmi will bring profit," "The store will be kept fulls" "Prosperity and success will he brought," "Under the protection of Goddess Kall," "Under the protection of Goddess Ganga," etc. These should he substituted by unselfish, auspicious words, such as, "Sri Lakşminarayana, in the form of Bliss, is present everywhere," or "Goddess Laksmi bas been worshipped with great delight and enthusiasm" Similarly, while making entries on the daily eash book, this procedure should be followed

(D) Renunciation of Indolence and Desire in the Service of Parents and other Elders

It is man's supreme duty to render dally services, in all possible ways, to parents, the preceptor and other persons who are one's superiors in Varna, Aframa, age, qualifications, of in whitever other respect it may be, and daily offer them obeisances. Cultivating this bhought in the mind, and shandoning all kileness, disinterested and enthusiantic services should be reedered to them, according to God's bebats

(E) Renunciation of Indolence and Desire in the Performance of Sacrifices, Charities, Austerities and other Auspicious

Sacrifices, e. g., the daily obligatory five great sacrifices, and other occasional sacrifices, should be performed. Through gifts of food, clothing, learning, medicine, and wealth, etc. attempt should be made, according to one's capacity, to make all creatures happy, through mind, speech and the body. Similarly, all forms of hodily suffering should be undersone for the preservation of Dharman. These duties enjoined by the scriptures should be performed, with faith and enthusiasm, according to God's behests, regarding them as supremely important, wholly remouncing the desire for all kinds of enjoyment of this wards and

(F) Renunciation of Indolence and Desire in the Performance of Proper Works for the Maintenance of one's Family through earning

It is God's injunction that the family should be maintained through service to the world by performing duties laid down in the scriptures

The five Great Sacrifices are as fallows—(1) Sacrifice to gods (performance of Agmidstre, etc.), (2) Sacrifice to for the respective Varpas and Aramas, even as agriculture, cattle-breeding ond trade have been laid down as the means of livelihood for the Vaitya. Therefore, regarding them as duties, treating profit and loss as equal, and renouncing all forms of desire, such works should be enthusiastically performed.

(G) Renunciation of Indolence and Desire in Works for the Preservation of the Body

In works andertaken for the preservation of the hody, according to the scriptures, e. g. partaking to food, medicines, etc., the desire for enjoyment should be renounced. They should be performed, according to the needs of the occasion, only with the object of God-Realization, regarding pleasure and pain, profit and loss, life and death as equal.

Rus (study of the Vedas, performance of Sandhya and Japa of Gayatt etc.), (3) Secrifice to the Mancat performance of Tarapas, Sciddha, etc.), (4) Secrifice to Man (secrification of guests), (5) Secrifice to all created beings (performance of Bahvasiawaders).

• Works performed by a person in the above spirit, being free from greed, causine be tained by erin in any wire, for in works of irrebbond greed is the principal cause which leads one to the commission of mr. Therefore, mea should renounce all forms of end connected with their respective datter as laid down by the Virgidinant ayrlem, and perform all their datter for God's asks, disintervenedly, regarding them as luminations of God'.

Together with the four types of renunciation stated above, when according to this fifth type of renunciation, all evils and all forms of destre are destroyed and there remains the one strong destre for God-Realization, it should be regarded as the mark of the person who has attained ripeness in the first stage of Wisdom.

(6) Total Renunciation of the Sense of Meum and Attachment with regard to all Worldly Objects

All worldly objects like wealth, house, clothes, etc., and all forms of enjoyment of this world and the next like honour, fame, prestige, etc. heing transient and persshable, and regarding them as impermanent, the sense of meum and attachment with regard to them should be renounced. Similarly, having developed pure, exclusive Love for God alone, the embodiment of Truth, Knowledge and Bliss, all sense of meum and attachment should be renounced for all works done through the mind, speech and body, and even for the body itself. This is the sixth type of renunciations.

[&]quot;The renunciation of thirst for all objects, and the renunciation of delare for the fruit of all activities have been described above as the third and fifth type of renunciation, but even after such renunciation the sense of mrums and stuckment for them are left as resident; just as error

(7-) Total Renunciation of Subtle Desires and Egoism with regard to the World,

the Body and all Actions

All objects of the world heing projections of Maya, are wholly transient, and God alone, the embodiment of Trath, Knowledge and though Blarai Ment through practices of Blayas and meditation and association with body men, had resonated all thirst for worldly objects and desire for the found oil scienties, discone if meum in respect of the dear and attachment to the daty of protecting the deer langered. That is why remulacible of the sense of meum and attachment for all objects and activities have been described as the sink type of remunesties.

Bliss, is equally present everywhere: this idea having been firmly established, all unbile deares for the objects of the world, including the body, and for every form of activity have to be totally renounced. In other words, there should be no thought of them left in the mind in the form of impressions, And due to total lack of identification with the body, there should be no trace of any sense of doership with regard to actions done through the mind, speech and body This is the seventh type of transmisting.

The thoughts of persons, who attain Supreme Dispassion† in the form of this seventh type of reuneration, get totally withdrawn from all objects of the world. If at any time any worldly thought makes its appearance, it does not leave any impression on the mind, for they always remain family established in God, the embodiment of Truth. Knowledge and Bliss

Even when there is total argains of thirs, of the desire for first, of the sease of incean and sittedment with region to sill objects of the world and all forms of activity, desire in its subtle form and the feeling of doorning perint. This is why reassectation of subtle desire and egolium has been described as the seventh type of remundistion.

attained ripeness in the third stage of wisdom. Some of the virtues mentioned above appear in the first and second stages, but all the virtues make their appearance generally in the third stage. For these homage are the marks of persons who have reached very near God-Realization, and are the means of attainment of direct Knowledge of God. That is why in Chapter XIII of the Gila (verses 7 to 11) Bhagavan Śri Kispa enumerated most of these virtues as Knowledge and in Chapter XVI (verses 1 to 3) mentions them as the divine qualities.

hody, and all actions, constant union through identity with God is the mark of the person who has

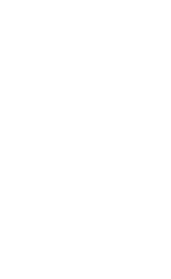

Moreover, the scriptural authorities regard these virtues as the common Dharms of humanity. All men are qualified to attain them. Therefore, depending on God all should make special efforts to develop the above virtues in their mind-Conclusion

In this article it has been said that God may be realized through seven types of renunciation-Among them, it has been pointed out, the first five types of renunciation indicate the first stage of wisdom, those upto the sixth type indicate the marks of the second stage of wisdom, and renunciations upto the seventh type indicate the marks of the third stage of wisdom. He who after he ceases to have any connection with this transient, perishable, impermanent world. Just as the person awakened from a dream ceases to have any connection with the dream-world. even so the person awakened from the dream of ignorance ceases to have any connection with the impermanent world, the creation of Maya. Though from the point of view of the world all forms of activities are observed as taking place through the body of that person under the force of Prarabdha, and the world gains a lot by such activities, I for being freed from desires. attachment and the sense of doership, whatever the Mahatma does through his mind, speech and hody is accepted as the standard of right conduct in the world, and from the ideas of such a Mahatma scriptures are formed) yet that person who has realized God, the embodiment of Truth, Knowledge and Bliss lives wholly beyond Maya, consisting of the three Gunas. Therefore, he during illumination, activity and sleep, etc., which are the effects of the Gunas, does not ahhor them, nor, when they cease, desires for them. For he views pleasure and pain, gain and loss, honour and ignominy, praise and blame, etc., as also earth, stone and gold, etc. alike, Therefore, that Mahatma does not feel delighted on obtaining an desirable object, or on the removal of what is undesirable, nor does he grieve when obtaining an undesirable object or over the loss of what is desirable If for any reason, his body is cut with a weapon, or he is faced with any other form of extreme suffering, that man of wisdom, established exclusively in God, the embodiment of Truth, Knowledge and Bliss, is not shaken

it. He alone is entitled to speak on the subject who has realized this truth and lives up to it, and he alone is eligible for being initiated into it who is ripe for its realization and realizes it the moment it is communicated to him. Those who do not belong to this category are neither allowed to talk of it nor to hear it talked of. Nay. this sort of teaching can even have an adverse effect on those who have likes and dislikes, who rejoice in earthly gains and are upset by losses, who experience joy and sorrow as distinct from each other and who have a rest for worldly enjoyments and are given to the gratification of their senses. They are led into the erroneous belief that, the world stself being a mere dream, sins like mendacity, adultery, violence, fraudulence and chicanery, etc. are also unreal, so that no harm can come to a man whatever he may do-Armed with this belief they give up virtuous actions which are difficult to perform and require some effort, whereas it is much easier to give up such actions and to indulge in sinful deeds. Hence it is prohibited in the Sastras to preach this doctrine to those who are unqualified For the latter are unable to grasp tois teaching in its true apirit, and abandon virtuous actions. while they eannot obtain illumination and are thus losers in both ways. The following Hindi couplet is often auoted in this connection and is very significant :--

ब्रह्मन्यान उपज्यो नहीं, कमें दिये छिटकाय । तुलसी प्रेमी आतमा, सहज नरकमें जाय॥

"One who has not obtained culightense and has abandanced his legitimate dat paves his way for helt."

That is why the Lord says in the Bhagara

न बुद्धिभेदं जनयेदशानां कर्मसहिनाम् । जोवयेरसर्वकर्मीण विद्वान् युक्तः समाचरन्॥

"A wise man established in Me should p uncettle the mind of the ignorant attach to action, but should get them to perfor all their duties, duly performing them him soil."

The only difference between the actions of a wise and those of an ignorant person is the those of the former are naturally free from attachment while those of the latter are performed with attachment. The GM2 says:—

सन्तः कर्मण्यविद्वांसो यथा कुवेन्ति सारत । कुर्योदिद्वांत्रपासमध्यक्षीर्युक्षीकसंग्रहम् ॥

(III, 25)
"Arjuna, as the unwise act with attachment an should the wise man, seeking maintenance of the world order, act without attachment"

The long and short of it is that one should not talk of Brahma untainted by Miri before unqualified persons.

It may be urged here that when there is nothing beyond the one Riternal Existence untainted by Maya the existence of the universe as also of its Creator is out of the question. And if this is the case, what will happen to the striptures that treat of these subjects and the creation as it appears to us? Our reply to this is that, to take a familiar instance, the sky is devoid of form but sometimes a strip of cloud makes its appearance therein Now, such strips of cloud spring up in the sky; appear in the sky as well as melt away in the sky; but all these changes make no difference in the substance of the sky. The part of the sky which is covered by clouds, however, assumes a distinctive shape and is the seat of phenomena like rain, etc.

Similarly, that aspect of the one Retenal, Pure and Infinite Existence which appears to be screened by Maya is known as Qualified or Personal God. In fact, this Qualified or Personal God is not something different from the Impersonal Divinity, although He is regarded as different simply because of His contact with Maya which makes Him appear as such. This Personal or Qualified aspect of Consciousness, which appears as different from the Impersonal aspect is the Creator of the universe. He is also known by other names such as Adipurusa (the Primal Being), Purusyottama (the Supreme Being) and Mayavidista Iswara (God qualified by Maya). The universe which appears as subsist-Maya).

ing in this Qualified aspect of Consciousness a clouds in a fraction of the sky is an effect of Māyā (illusion). Māyā is only another nam for the Sakts or power of the Creator. This power of God inheres in Him in the same wa as the hurning power subsists in fire. This i also known by the name of Prakṛti (Nature and Ainana (Ignorance).

Now, what is this Maya and how does i come into being? This is a different topic and will lead us into digression. We would there fore refrain from discussing this question and revert to our original topic. From the foregoing exposition it should have been clear that the formless, all-pervading, infinite Consciousness which has been likened to the sky, is termed as Suddha Brabma (Divinity untainted by Maya) In fact, the analogy of the sky, too, is not appropriate and conveys only a partial idea of Brahma. For the sky has got a limit and, even though it is formless, it is endowed with an attribute, viz., sound; whereas Suddha Brahma is limitless (infinite), unqualified, absolute and one. Hence It has been styled as Indescribable (ब्रिनिवेबनीर) and that is why this profound truth can be preached only to those qualified persons who can assimilate it. So much about Suddha Brahma.

appears as differentiated represents the Personal God who is qualified by Maya and is the Creator 180

Now, that aspect of Brahma which (like the part of the sky which is covered by clouds) of the universe. And the whole universe subsists, in a fraction of that God:-

विष्टभ्याहमिदं कृष्यनमेकांशेन स्थिती जगत्॥ (GHA. X 42)

This naturally leads us to a discussion of the Embodied or manifest Divinity known by the name of Avatara or Incarnation. Whenever He finds at necessary, this Personal God harnesses His Mayo. and manifests Himself in a form suitable for His. mission. He is incarnated sometimes in the human. form, sometimes in the form of a boar, sometimes, in the form of a man-hon, sometimes in the form of a fish or tortolse and sometimes in the form of a swan or a horse, according to the exigencies of the situation, and blesses those with whom He comes in contact with His much coveted vision. But He is never born in this world like ordinary creatures. The Lord has stated the occasion and motive of His incarnation in the following couplets of Srimad Bhazavadzita -

> यदा यदा कि धर्मेख म्हानिजैयित सारत । अम्युष्पानमधर्मेख नदारमार्गे खतान्यहम् ॥ परिज्ञाणाय सापूर्वा विवासाय च दुष्कृताम् । धर्मसंस्थापनार्योय संभवतिम युपे युगे ॥ (Cuz. IV 7.8)

[&]quot;Arjuna, whenever there is decline of righteous.

hese, and unrighteousness is in the ascendant, then I body Myself forth.

ascendant, then I body Myself forth.
"For the protection of the virtuous, for the destruction of eyil doors, and for establishing Dharma (rightsoneness) on a firm footing I am born from age to age."

At this moment I find no such Incarnation of God who may come forward and say that he has bodied himself forth for the deliverance of righteous men. Virtuous men ean be had in a good number, but we find none who has come down to this earth to liberate such virtuous souls. Nor do we find nuvone or who may proclaim like Sri Krspa:-सर्वंचर्मान् वरिष्यज्य मामेकं शरणं वता। क्षद्वे स्वा सर्वेवावेज्यो मोश्चविष्यामि मा शवः ॥ (Cus. XVIII 66)

"Surrendering atl duties to Me, seek refuge in Me alone. I shatt absolve you of all sins, grieve not"

There is nobody in this world at present who can undertake to absolve anyone from sins through sheer dependence on him.

A few days ago a certain gentleman approached me, saying that sins had multiplied in the world and asked me whether the time had not yet come for the Lord to hody Himself forth and, if the time had arrived, why did He not incarnate Himself? I pleaded ignorance in this matter. As a matter of fact, I do not claim to know anything and everything. The Lord alone knows why He tarries. Of course, if anyone asks me whether I shall be pleased in the event of the Lord incarnating Himself I should say I shall be only too glad if the Lord bodies Himself forth, for in that case even I can obtain

His vision. If anyone innocently asks me whether in my opinion the time for the Lord incarnating Himself has come, I can say from surmise that the time has probably not yet arrived. For, had the time come, the Lord would undoubtedly have hoded Himself forth. Things are not yet so had as they should be in the Kali Age. Atrocities have not yet grown so rampant, and righteousness and righteous men have not yet suffered so much as they did during the time of other incarnations. During the time of Bhagavan Srf Ram alone, for instance, so many sages and seers were killed by demons that heaps of their houses had been piled up here and there.

Q.—Were not the ancient Esis powerful enough to kill the demons? If they were, why did not they kill the demons?

Ans.-The Rsis did possess the power of killing the Raksasas, but they were not willing to expend the spiritual energy which they had acquired and stored up through lifelong practice of religious austenties (तरीका). When the sage Viśwamitra approached King Dasaratha and begged him to band over Rama and Laksmana to him, he said to him. "Even though I can kill the Raksasas myself, I shall thereby he exhausting the store of spiritual energy that I have accumulated through the practice of austere penances, which I am loth to do. On their death at the hands of Sri Rama and Laksmapa the performance of my religious rites will be secured against sacrilegious encroachments, and the store of my spiritual energy remain intact. Sri Rama and Laksmana can easily make short work of the demons it is I who know this and not you."

King Daśaratha nut of ignorance took Śri Rama and Lakşmana th be mrdinary boys, and out of parental affection said to Viśwamitra, "Your Holiness, I am prepared to accompany you myself and kill any Rakşasas excepting Ravaņa, of course; I beseech you therefore to let Rama and Laksmana alone and tale me with you." Seeing the Emperor under the clutches of infatuation, the sage Vasjstba who recognized the real greatness of Śri Rama intervened and pleaded with the Emperor thus—

"Your Majesty need not he afraid, they are not ordinary hoys and no harm can come to them. You may therefore gladly send them with the sage." This narrative will show that the sages of yore were powerful, no doubt, but they did not want to exercise their power which they had accumulated through anstere penances.

The Kail Age has not yet advanced so far as to necessitate the Lord's incarnating Himself. Moreover, the Lord does not body Himself forth so easily on every occasion. In the first instance, If e depates Ili's accredited representatives, known as Karaka Purusay, investing them with Ilis own authority, just as the proprietor of a firm sends his trusted agent to look after his husiness. But when he feels that the deputation of a representative would not serve the desired ends and that things would not he set right unless he goes in person, he himself proceeds to that place. In the same way, when the Lord feels it necessary to body Himself forth even after He bas deputed a representative, He appears personally in our midst. The privileged class known as Karaka Purusas includes those God-attained souls who after casting off their montal frame are escorted to the higher regions by celestial beings and ultimately reach the region called Satyaloka, according to the process mentioned in the following couplet of Stimed Ebagaradgia—

अग्रिस्थेतिरहः ग्रुष्टः वृष्मासः अत्तरायजम् । तत्र प्रयासः राष्ट्रान्ति सद्दा मद्दाविद्देशे जनाः ॥

Such blessed beings as are destined for the Satyaloka are received in advance by the attendants (wit) of the Lord who are also known by the name of mara get (superhuman or angelic beings), who take them to the highest abode of the Lord with great honour. That abode or region, known as Parama Dhama, does not perish at the time of universal destruction (954) and is perfectly immune from affliction and sorrow. One who finds his way into this region once is never reborn in this mortal world with the bonds of Karma or action. Probably it is this region which is designated as Vaikuntba by the devotees of Sri Visnu, as Goloka by the devotees of Sri Krspa and as Saleta by the devotees of Sri Rama. The boly persons who find their admittance into this place remain there in an ecstatic state until final dissolution (महाप्रच्य) and are ultimately merged in Eternity or pure Existence (Ta sa). Of these emancipated souls, of the Lord who is the Creator of this universe, of of his own free will, simply with a view to wor for the welfare of the universe, he is known as Karaka Puruşa (authorized agent or representative Believing souls can be redeemed merely by seein them, touching them and thinking of them. Sage. like Sri Vasıştha, Sri Vedavyasa and so on belonger to this type of exalted heings. Redemption o mankind is the only motive of their incarnation in this world. We find that the representatives of s ruler sometimes visit the state gaol on some special occasion with the royal commission to release the prisoners confined there and return of their own free will after carrying out the behests of their ruler Prisoners as well as state officers visit the gaol, the difference being that whereas prisoners have to go there under compulsion

if anyone comes into this world again at the biddir

in order to serve the sentence awarded to them for their crimes, the officials go there of their own free will and out of compassion, in order to release the prisoners in bondage. Similarly, the Karaka Puruşas, too, make their apearance in the world simply in order to liberate the soulis that are hound by the shackles of Karma. The only difference hetween an Avatara and a Karaka Puruşa is that the former was never a Jiva (a soul in bondage) whereas a Karaka Puruşa was 2 Jiva before and attained liberation by gradual stages through his own efforts coupled with Divine

Grace. An Avatara or even a Karaka Purusa is not to be found anywhere in this world at the present day; of course, Jivanmukta saints can be found.

Mukti (Liberation) is of two kinds-Sadyomukti (direct or ammediate laberation) and Kramamukti (liberation by gradual stages). Those who are absolutely freed from ignorance in this very life and are merged in the one eternal, true, blissful and intelligent Principle, the whole stock of whose actions has been consumed by the fire of wisdom and in whose eyes nothing remains except the one infinite and endless Divige Existence are called Ifvanmuktas (those who are liberated while living) and are said to have attained what is known as Sadyomukti, while those who reach the highest abode of God through different Lokas or regions are known as Kramamukta. This Kramamukti, again, is of four kinds viz. Samlova, Sarunya, Salokya and Savniva, Samlova means living in close proximity with the Lord. Sarupya means being endowed with a form similar to that of the Lord; Salokya means residing in the same Loka with the Lord and Savuiya means oneness with or merging in the Lord. Those who have the attitude of a servant or wife towards the Lord and treat Him as their master or husband are blessed with Sämipvamukti, those who look upon Him as a friend and treat Him as such are blessed with Sarupyamukti; those again, who love Him as a child are blessed with Salokyamukti and those who think of Him as an enemy or worship Him with devotion mixed with Jaana (knowledge are blessed with Savmyamnkti.

Such exalted souls can be found in the world even today. A Jivanmukta is one who was a Jiva before and was liberated afterwards through His individual efforts. King Janaka and Sri Sukadeva are instances of this type.

Among the Jivas the foremost are those who have heen freed from Jivahood. Next in order are those who have embraced divine virtues and are treading the path of liberation and have very usarly approached their destination. It is vety probable that they may be liberated in this very life or they may have to be reborn once again. Such people can be found even now. Like Jivanmucktas even they are generally not subject to Just and anger, or even to the feelings of lor and sorrow.

Q.—The scriptures tell us that there have been ages and holy men, too, in the past who manifested joy and sorrow. How is this to be accounted for?

Ast — Those who are affected by joy and antiow as resulting from attrebment and repulsion cannot be regarded as Jivanmukias flut if they occasionally exhibit joy and sorrow by way of daty and in order to preserve a time-homosired practice there can be no objection to their doing as Lord Sitt Rama Himself wept butterly on the addaction of Sitt and on Lahamaya hiving been but with a Sith (dart or speri) butterly by Meghantia and that, too, In such a way as to coffered many imported pertunder. Hut that constituted an ideal behaviour on the put of Stikling. Moreover, there was one more secret underlying this behaviour. By weeping piteously for Sita and Laksmana he tanght the world the lesson of supreme love and tenderness of heart The Lord has described His nature in the Ebaganatica as follows—

ये यथा मां प्रपद्यन्ते तांसधैव भजान्यहम् । (17.11)

"Arjuna, howseever men approach Me. even so do I seek them,"

It was in consonance with this principle that Sri Rama accosted even inanimate objects such as trees, boughs and leaves and so on and enquired of them the whereabouts of Sita and thus proved that just as Sita who was at that time in the clutches of Ravana was londly repeating His name in the eestasy of love, even so was He loudly repeating her name with a heart full of love. Similarly, by wailing for Laksmana Sri Rama proved that His heart was as sore for Laksmana as the latter's could be for Him. From these incidents we should learn that the Lord is prepared to reciprocate our feelings and attitude towards Him. Not to speak of the Lord, even sages and seers can manifest outward signs of joy and sorrow in their worldly hehaviour.

So far we have talked of Jivannuktas and those who have very nearly approached the stage of liberation. Besides these, there are pious Yogis who betake themselves to the Lord with an ulterior motive and who are led by various gods, is mentioned in the following couplet of the Blacanders, through the linux effulzence to paradise, and, having enjoyed the limit of their noble actions there, return to the mortal world—

r vitt. 25) In former times there were Vogts who had acquired the elaktloid accomplishments (= 29fz)or at least some of them. The knowledge of this science has now very nearly disappeared. As a matter of fact, mere acquisition of these Siddhis is not conducive of the highest good (feifir). One can derive worldly enjoyments and amenities of life from such Siddhis but not Moksa or liberation. That is why the Sastras have recognized these Siddhis as mere stumblingblocks in the path of liberation and instrumental in securing earthly pleasures alone. The Yogis who acquire Siddhis generally do not go heyond them. whereas the other class of Yogis who tread the path ol liberation acquire Moksa which is the highest accomplishment Hence they rank higher than the former.

Q.-What are the eight Siddhis, how are they acquired and what is their utility?

Ans.—The eight Siddhis are Anima, Garima, Mahima, Laghima, Prapti, Prakamya, Iširva and Vašitva. These are attained by following the eightfold path of Yoga, and their utility is as follows:—

(1) Anima consists in making one's hody as

- minute as an atom (नणु) as $ri Hanuman did while entering the portals of Lanka.
- (2) Garima consists in uncreasing the weight of one's body to abnormal limits as Lord Sri Krapa did during the encounter of Adjuna with Karna, when He is said to have brought the charited along with the borses to the level of the earth under pressure of His body as a device to dodge the deadly dart huried by Karna against Adjuna, for whom He was acting as a charioteer.
- (3) Mahima consists in dwelling the size of one's hody at will as Lord Vamana did while trying to divest the demon king Bali of his kingdom.
 - (4) Laghima consists in making the hody exceedingly light.
- (5) Prapti consists in securing the object of one's desire as the sage Bharadwaja did at the time of entertaining Bharata, who was going to bring his elder hrother back to Avodhya.
- (6) Prakamya means infallibility of desire-
- (7) Isitva consists in acquiring the power of creating the universe, similar tothat possessed by God.
- (8) Vasitva consists in winning over anyone through one's magnetic influence.

Manifest and Unmanifest aspects of God can atta salvation. Worshippers of the Manifest aspect ea also behold flis personal Form, whereas those wh worship His Unmanifest aspect are not able to visualize ffim, as they do not care to do so. Worshi of the Manifest aspect of God comes to fruition apeedily when it is accompanied by a Knowledge of His comprehensive nature. In other words, th worshipper should realize that the God whom h worships is omnipresent and omnipotent. A votary of Siva or Visnu, for instance, should not conceive hi Deity to be present in the Image only and nowher clsc. Such a narrow conception of God partakes of th Tamas element and has been deprecated in the Gill (ride Chapter XVIII. 22). This does not mean that one should not practise idol-worship, or that our who conceives his God as existing in the Image only and naively worships Him as such without comprehending His true nature should desist from that worship. To engage in worship of any kind whatsoever is better than no worship at all. Of course, worship of this latter type, proceeding as it does from a narrow conception of God, hears fruit after a long time. The only disadvantage it has is that it hears fruit after a long time, which is due to the fact that the worshipper helittles his own God hy conceiving Him as confined to a particular image only.

If a worshipper of fire who kindles fire for the sake of performing a sacrifice helieves that fire is limited to that place alone and does not recognize its presence elsewhere, he thereby minimizes its importance inasmuch as he circumscribes that which is present everywhere within narrow limits. On the other hand, he who comprehends the real nature of fire knows that it is present everywhere, though in a latent form, which accounts for its invisibility; that it is perceived the moment it is kindled and it can be kindled by ordinary effort, Had it been nonexistent elsewhere, how could it be produced anywhere and everywhere? Just as fire, though Datent in the specificial Dif alone present everywhere in a latent form. similarly, God as well is equally present everywhere in His unmanifest form and is visualized by the devotee by dint of his love. It is the Unmanifest which becomes manifest in a particular place, and the manifest is present everywhere in an Unmanifest form the two are really one, or, in other words, they are the two aspects of one and the same entity. One who worships the Manifest aspect of God while recognizing this fundamental unity underlying the two aspects is able to attain his goal speedily. As a matter of fact, God cannot be likened to fire. The analogy of fire has been adopted only by way of illustration; for fire is not omnipresent to the same extent as God. Five omnipresent substances cannot co-exist. Earth, water, fire, air, etc. subsist in their respective forms the main characteristic of earth is colour, while that of fire is enfour and so on. God, on the other hand, is consigneed and the Supreme cases of all canera. In therefore substitute everywhere. An effect can never be comprehensive, the cause ainer is comprehensive. Prakti (Primordial Matter) is the cause of the universe, while God is the cause of the naiverse, while Herce it is called the Supreme Cause (NEWF). Praktil which is inconscient on the the cause of the intonetient universe; it cannot be the cause of God who is a conscious Principle He alone is the Supreme cause of everything; He alone pervades sentient and insentient beinger alike at all times.

The Unmanifest aspect of God is characterized as all-existence (#2) all-knowledge (#27) infinite (#27) and a compact mass of hiss (#277). Sat means that which never cease to be and never undergoes change, that which is immutable and which is always uniform. Vijfana signifies wisdom, pure consciouseers and illumination. Ananta implies that which has no limit, no magnitude, which can neither be weighed nor measured, which can neither be weighed nor measured which does not admit of extremes, which is the subtilest of the subtile and the hugest of the hage and which contains the whole universe in one fraction of it. Anandaghana conveys the idea of Absolute bliss, bliss and bliss alone, Ghana denotes that there is no room in it for anything else than bliss. Just as ice is consolidated water, similarly. God is consolidated bliss. The difference between the two is that while ice has a form and is inconscient and hard. God is formless. conscious and knowledge personified Such a formless God is present everywhere and fills all space. The blissful nature of God is beyond description. It is simply ineffable. Have you ever been transported with joy due to some earthly cause? That is nothing when compared to the raptures one enjoys in the company of saints approached with genuine faith, in the remembrance of God or in meditating upon Him, and to which the Gita refers in XVIII. 36-37. Sensual pleasure pales into insignificance before this ecstatic joy, And even this joy is a small drop of that ocean of bliss which is known by the name of Brahma (God); any other joy is not absolute, it is limited and can be adulterated.

He does not perish even when all eise perishes.

All that exists as an projection of God who is all bliss incarnate. The whole universe is contained in God just as the reflection is contained in a mirror. Strictly speaking, it is not contained in Him: it is only reflected in Him. Whereas a mirror is inconscient and hard, God is an embodiment of Supreme Bliss and considers at the same time, He is present where he a compact form and cannot be conwith anothing else. His compactness is analyzed to the control of the control of the presentation in other control of the presentation by anothing else. The Sell III is a let or white and compact that it can penetrated by anothing treign. The hody mind, the intellect and so or can be entered but the Self cannot. God in His anyerial but the Self cannot. God in His anyerial unmanifest aspect is likewise impenetrable.

His consciousness, too is of a sin' type. Everything that exists in our body inconscient, and the principle that knows it alone is conscious. That which is knowshif inconscient, objective: it cannot know the Hands and feet, for instance, know not the the Self, however, knows them. It is the that knows everything: thoseledge is its essence. That knowledge itself is God who amnipresent. Every lack of space is occup by Him. There is no nook or corner which devoid of Him. That is why the Sruti descri-Him as evi arrear-i wa-'Brahma (God) is Tr Absolute, Knowledge Absolute, and Infinite.'

Attracted by the love of His devotees: with a view to redeeming them, the self-sa Brahma manifests Itself as an embodied Bei and appears before them. It is something bey the range of human intellect to describe t manifest forms of the Lord which are innumerable-He manifests Himself in the same form in which a devotee likes to see Him. The Lord is not independent in the matter of assuming a particular form: it is flis loving devotee who is responsible for His manifestation. Arjuna, for example, expressed a desire to behold His Universal form in the first instance, then His eelestial form endowed with four arms, and Iast of all Ifis human form with two arms only The Blessed Lord, in order to fulfil the desire of His beloved devotee, appeared before him in all these forms successively within a short time and also divulged to him the secret of His unmanifest aspect. In this way the devotee can visualize Him in whatever form he may be worshipping.

Hence it is not necessary to change the form of worship. In whatever form we worship Him, whether in that of Rama, Kṛṣṇa, Viṣṇa, Siva, Nṛṣṇa, lo (Man-lion), Sakti, Gaṇeśa or any cher form, the object of worship is the selb-anne God. Nor is it necessary to make any alteration in the form of prayer. The only thing which requires to be changed is our conception of God, if it is narrow. A devotee should always remember that the God whom he worships pervades the whole universe, consisting of moving and motioniess beings, in His unmanifest form; that He is omniscient and the overseer of all that is happening. He is all-wise, all-pervading, all-virtuous, all-powerful, the witness of all, all-all-virtuous, all-powerful, the witness of all, all-virtuous, all-vi existence, all-intelligence and Bliss personifier It is He who assumes different forms and play different roles as a mere sport in conformity with the desires of His devotees and with a view to redeeming them God is never invisible to such souls who have understood His true nature nor does He ever lose sight of them.

The Lord Himself has said in the Bhagavadeita:-

थो मां पश्यति सर्वत्र सर्वं च मयि पश्यति ।

(VL 30)

तस्याई न प्रणस्थामि स च मे न प्रणस्यति ॥

"He who sees Me (the Universal Self) present in all beings, and sees all beings existing in Me, I am never out of sight of him, nor is he ever out of sight of Ma."

There is no material difference between the Manifest and Unmanifest aspects of God. It is the Unmanifest that becomes manifest. The Lord says:—

सजोऽपि ससन्वयाया। भूतानामीश्वरोऽपि सङ् । प्रकृति स्वामधिष्टाय संभवान्यात्ममायया॥

(Cité, IV. 6)
"Though unborn and immortal, and also the Lord of all beings, I manifest Myself through My own Yogamāyā (divine potency), keeing My Nature (Prakti) under control."

One may ask, why does He take a body? An answer to this question is furnished by the Lord Himself in the following words

> यदा यदा हि धर्मेस्ट ग्लानिर्मेवति भारत । सम्युत्धानमधर्मेस्ट तदान्मानं स्वाम्यहम् ॥

परिवाचाय साधूनौ विवादास च बुष्कृतास् । धर्मसंस्थापनाधीय संसदाति युगे युगे ॥ (Gua. IV 7-8)

"Arjnna, whenever there is decline of righteoneness, and unrighteoneness is in the escendant, then I body Myself forth.

"For the printection of the virtness, for the destruction of evil-dners, and for establishing Dharma (righteonness) on a firm footing, I am burn from age to age "

In this way the Lord who is imperishable and immutable, is born in this world of His own fice will, attracted by the love of Hrs devotes and with a view to redeeming the world. He is an embodiment of love: every activity of His is inspired by love and compassion. He delivers those whom He slays. Even death at His hands is a token of His all-embracing love. But the ignorant world which does not resilute the true significance of His mysterious incurnations and activities, enterthins all sorts of doubts about Him. The Lord says.

बन्म कर्म व में दिश्यमेर्व यो वेति तत्वतः । स्यक्ता देई पुनर्जन्म नैति मामेति सोर्जुन ॥

"Arjana, My bitth end activities are divine. He who knows this in reality does not take bitth again on leaving his body, but obtains Mo."

God Almighty who is truth, knowledge and bluss personified, is unhorn and imperishable, the ultimate goal and the supreme asylum of all beings; it is only with a view to the rehabilitathe world that He takes a personal form throng His Vogamitya. Hence there is no or so benevolent, so loving and such a reclaimer of the fallen ns God. He alone who realires thi and thinking of Him constantly and wit undivided love, fares in this world free froe attachment, knows Him In essence. Such as enlightened soul never returns to this morta world, this "vale of tears."

tion of the Divine Law and the deliverance

He alone is truly blessed who has come to realize the divine (first) nature of His incarnations and activities. The word 'Diver' in Sanskrit is variously rendered as 'transparent' (BENER), 'illuminating' (RETURE), 'transcendental' (अश्रीरिक), 'purc' (रिश्चक) and so on. All these virtues ean he predicated of the jocarnation and activities of the Lord. Stories of His activities gain currency in the world and impress every heart They spread their fustre throughout the oniverse; may, the hearts of even those who remember and recite them get purified and become transparent like crystal. Hence the activities of the Lord are termed as transparent (चन्नक). The more they are broadcast the more effective they are in dispelling the darkness of ignorance. Where the exploits of the Lord are recounted daily the whole atmosphere gets illumined by the rays of knowledge, and the darkness of sins and afflictions disappears. Hence it is that they are called illuminating. The activities of the Lord, again, are not actuated by any selfish motive or selfinterest or desire; they are free from all tinge of sin and all impurities. Hence they are called rure. No one can emulate His activities, even godslike Bishma and ledra are infituated by His sctions, He brings within the region of possibility even that which cannot be conceived by the world at large, that which is impossible. He sometimes secomplishes even that which is improbable lie transcends even Ilvanmultas (those who have been liberated from the trammels of birth and death even during their life-time) and Karala l'urusas (regresentatives of God incarnated in the world like God Himself). Hence He is characterized as transcendent. His ineargations are pure in every respect. He manifests Himself by way of sport. He assumes a personal form which is an embodiment of love Love constitutes His glorious form, bence those alone who are of a loving nature can recognize Him. Those fortunate beings who, baving resliged this truth, worship Him with love are blessed with a sight of the loving countenance of Him who is all-love. Hence we should surrender our all-body, mind, intellect, nay, our very soul,-at Ilis lotus-like feet and remein absorbed in His thought day and night. We should always remember His loving command and assurance-

"Therefore, fix your mind on Mo, and establish your reason in Me alone, thereafter you will abide in Me. There is no doubt about it."

Rarity of Divine Knowledge

It is not possible for an enlightened soul to tell in right earnest even those who look upon him with reverence that he is enlightened, for such an admission on the part of an enlightened soul would betray his ignorance. As a matter of fact, one who has got full faith in him would never ask him whether he is enlightened or not. One who ask such a question should be regarded as lacking in faith; nay, such a question would surely bring harm to the questioner. For, should the enlightened soul declare that he is not enlightened or if he admits that he is enlightened, the faith of the questioner would he shaken in either case. Really speaking, no enlightened soul can make either of these assertions. For, if he says he is not enlightened, he will he guilty of making a false statement; and, if he says he is, he would he admitting plurality and thus betraying his lack of wisdom. He would therefore refuse to make any statement whatsoever on this point and would rather remain silent. This, however, does not mean that he does not really know God. For the Sruti says:—

माई मन्ये नुषेदेति भी न वेदेति वेद च। यो मकदेव तदेव भी न वेदेति वेद च॥ बस्तामने तस्य मर्गमने यस न वेद सः। जविद्याने विभावती विद्यातमविद्याननाम्॥

(Kenopanyad, IL 2.3)

"I do not believe that I know God fully nor that I do not know Him, since I know Him. Whoseer of us knows Him slee knows that peither do I know nor do I know Him not.

"God has been thought out by him who takes Ilim es unthought out, whereas he who takes Ilim es thought out does not know Ilim. He is unknown to those who presume to know Ilim end is known to those who deny Ilis knowledge;

Hence the position of an enlightened soul has been characterized as something indescribable (scalarda), hence it is that both kinds of statements as indicated above are found in the Vedas, and it is for this very reason that enlightened soals do not admit their having attained Divne Knowledge. Instead of offering their own remarks on the question, they simply refer the questioner to the verdict given on this point by the Veda and other scriptures. They do not at the same time deny their having attained spiritual wisdom. It is hardly advisable even on the part of having an exemplary conduct, to make such disavowal inasmuch as it may lead their followers to despair of God-realization as something impossible of achievement. Suppose some one who ls held in great esteem by the people today declares that he has not been able to realize God and that he himself hankers after that consummation, his followers will conclude that God-realization is something too high for them to attempt or hope to attain, or they may he lead to believe that the assertion of the leader is either a deliberate misstatement of facts or at best is intended to disguise the truth. Both these suppositions may lower the leader in their estimation and weaken their faith in him. Hence silence is the only advisable course in such caser. A eareful consideration of all these facts proves that an enlightened person can neither call himself wise or not wise. Notwithstanding all this, should such an enlightened soul, while administering spiritual knowledge to an aspirant to wisdom, assume himself to he wise in accordance with the latter's conception of himself, and even call himself such just in order to elucidate the point, no harm can accrue from such a behaviour on his part. Even such an assertion on his part is from the point of view of the aspirant only and he can take into confidence in such matters only one who has implicit faith in him and is supremely credulous, may, who can assimilate the truth as soon as it is taught to him and readily religious heads and spiritual leaders of mankind,

place himself in the mental state which is held up to him as the ideal to be attained. Suppose some one has got the necessary amount of faith and credulity but nevertheless he does not reach the mental state he is expected to reach. It may be urred in such eases that the blame does not lie with the aspirant. Quite so: but at least this much is essential for the aspirant that he should have exclusive faith in one God, the one of abom he has heard from his Guru, and make up his mind to attain Him at all costs and not to rest content till be has done so. Just as one who is apprised of the existence of a treasure trove in his house through one who knows of it, is impatient to dig it out and if some outsiders happen to be there, he sincerely wishes them gone and is anxious to take the earliest opportunity to obtain possession of the hidden treasure, similarly, a true aspirant is impatient to get rid of faults like attachment, ignorance, etc, which hinder his spiritual progress, and is anxious to be brought face to face with God, who is his supreme wealth, at the earliest moment. The more it is delayed the more impatient and restless he grows till be cannot brook any further delay. If an enlightened soul admits before such an aspirant even in unequivocal terms that he is enlightened, no harm can come to the aspirant. But, if he does so before an aspirant of an inferior type or before one who does not love bim fully, no harm can befall the enlightened

cont himself who is immune from all harm ariritual harm is likely to come to the lis who is not yet qualified to be taken into fidence in such matters. Had such things meant to be disclosed to anyone and ever without distinction, they would not have termed as secret in the scriptures, nor v they have been allowed to be communicated to those who are qualified to receive them. It may be asked here as to what is test of an enlightened soul; since, if we record as unqualified person as our spiritual guide teacher without duly testing him, this may to unlavourable results, according to the script The question is quite reasonable as also the of warning sounded by the scriptures; but can safely treat as our Guru or preceptor whose company may induce faith in God, that person bimself as well as in the script Even if he has not attained perfection, he surely lead us at least to the stage which has himsell attained (when considered from point of view, intercourse with even t aspirants who live in the company of enlights souls is desirable and profitable); and during rest of the journey God Himself comes to help and sees him through. The only thing an aspirant is required to do is to he himself solely and wholly to God. Everyth can be accomplished by taking refuge in C

अनन्यक्षित्वयन्तो मां ये जनग पर्युपासते t वैसं निःसभिषुक्षानां चौगञ्जेमं वहाभ्यहम् ॥ ((()) । X 22)

"Those devotees, however, who knowing no one else constantly think of Me, and worship Me in a disinterested way, to those ever nnited in thought with Me, I bring full security and personally attend to their needs " Even in our worldly affairs we find that one who solely depends on another is looked after in every way by the latter, just as a child so long as it is entirely dependent on its mother is eared for and guarded against all dangers by the mother. So long as the child does not attain maturity and assert its independence, it is solely dependent on its parents, and so long as it depends on its parents the whole responsibility in respect of it rests with the parents. Even so everything can be accomplished by solely depending on God. Of course, the act of surrender has to be performed by the aspirant. Once he has surrendered himself to the Lord the latter assumes the whole responsibility in respect of him. Hence everyone who aspires alter his spiritual welfare must take refuge in God.

The Ineffable Mood of a Inani

Just as the mind does not withdraw from lying, violence, sexual indulgence and so on even after they have been decried by even so the mind reluses to verdict of intellect, reached through analytic reasoning, declaring the world to he merel conceptual or ideal. There is a stage in th life of a practicant when such a thing happen The practicant describes such a mood by sayin that the world is a mere idea according to th verdict of his reason. Latter on, when the minalso accepts the verdiet of reason, the practican hegins to look upon the world as a mere idea But even now the practicant only conceives the world to be ideal; he does not realize it as such. Subsequently, when, as a result of continued mental practice, he actually begins to perceive the world as conceptual, the world appears to him sometimes as a shadow, while at other times it ceases to appear even as a shadow-Just as one, who due to defective vision, perceives threadlike streaks of golden light in the sky where there are none is cognizant of the fact that there is no such object in the sky and that the streaks only appear without any corresponding reality, even so it makes no difference to such a practicant whether the world appears to him as a mere shadow or does not appear at all. At no time and in no wise does the world appear to him as real. Such-a stage in the life of a practicant -has heen designated as saufers folds, (the actual stage of experience). This is known as the third stage of 'wisdom'; but even In this stage the perceiver or experiencer of such a stage persists. A practicant who has reached this stage is apt to err in his worldly dealings on account of intense mental exertion. But on reaching the fourth stage of God-realization one is not likely to commit such errors: one who has reached that stage efficiently discharges all his legitimate duties in the natural course as an automaton, without any conscious effort. The Lord has well said in the Gra —

"He whose undertakings are all free from desire and thoughts of the world, and whose actions are burnt up by the fire of wisdom, bim even the wise call 4 sage "*

Even in the fifth stage of 'illumination' one is likely to err in his worldly dealings, with this difference that whereas the mood of the practicant in the third plane is acquired, that of the practicant in this plane is spontaneous. The third stage is followed by 'realization', which is only another name of liberation (36s). The followers of certain faiths and creeds such as Jainism, etc. believe in salvation after death only; but our Vedanta admits the possibility of attaining salvation even during one's life-time. Saving knowledge or enlightenment can be acquired even before death. The distinct personality of one who has attained this state as well as the actions proceeding therefrom exist only in the eyes of others. There is no individual ego left identify itself with them. It may be asked her as to how activity is possible in an organism without the presence of a conscious agent of doer. In reply to this it is stated that the Universal Ego (सर्वहेंपेनन) is present there at the same; the' Ego which identified itself with a part has now expanded itself and embracer the whole-merged itself into the pure Ego And the motive power for activity is supplied by this pure Ego without any obstruction or hindrance It may be further objected that the Universal or Pure Ego is present in dead hodies and inert matter as well: why, then, is there no activity in the latter? Our reply to this is that want of the inner sense or faculty (कल करन) is responsible for the absence of activity in dead bidies and inprimate objects Should a Voet be able to multiply his Chitta (mind) and introduce it into a dead body or inanimate chiect, activity can be infused into such a body or object as well. Now, if one asks who receives enlightenment (क्ल), we find no answer to this question If the body is said to he illumined, the statement would not be compatible with reason; for it is not possible for a physical hody to get spiritually illumined. If the Jiva (individual Ego) + called enlightened, the statement would incongruous; for the Ego can no longer he called a Jiva after enlightenment. If, on the other hand, we apply the epithet 'wise' to the Pure E20, the statement would be equally preposterous, as the Pure E20 was never 'unwise'. Hence it cannot be definitely stream to who is wise.

The concept of an enlightened soul exists in the mind of a person who has not yet reached the stage of enlightenment in the tyrs of the Pure E20 nome else exists. An enlightened soul has no objective vision' bow, then, can the world exist for him? Only those who site yet far from enlightenment imagine that the soul inhabiting a particular body has merged into the Universal exists, that the merged into the Universal spirit: that the portion of the Universal Ego which has the mind superimposed on it, along with the mind, is termed as the enlightened soul. Who in teality receives the epithet 'enlightened' nobody can say with the help of his speech, for in the eyes of an enlightened Soul enlightenment itself does not exist The terms 'enlightened' and unenlightened' exist only for the edification of the world and the concept of enlightenment also resides in the mind of uneulightened souls only. Similar is the value of attempts made at defining the term Gunatita (one who has transcended the range of the three Gunas or attributes). As a matter of fact, how can any distinguishing traits (ega) exist in one who has transcended the three Gunas. Such distinguishing traits inhere in the mind and every function of the mind is of the nature of the three Gupa The fact is that recourse is taken to the metho of marking out the distinctive nature of the functions of the mind of a Gupatita in orde to understand what is meant by the term Sfrimad Bhafaradfill characterizes a Gupatitic

thus:—

"Atjans, he who feels no aversion to light (which is born of Sativa) or sativity (which is born of Rajas) or support which is born of Tamas, when they are present and does not long for them when they are absent.

The Lord has further discussed the characteristics of a Gupatite in the succeeding vertex, viz, verses 23, 24 and 25 also. In the vertex reproduced above the word "light' (RUR) should be taken to mean transparency of mind and the cognitive senses, activity (RG) should be construed to mean voluntary effort (RD), and 'stupor' (RP) should be interpreted as the tendency to sleep, lethargy or "sense" (not ignorance or moral delinquency) or a state very similar to profound sleep in the matter of worldly knowledge. Since there is no eyo identifying itself with the mind, in whom will 'abhorrence' (RV) and longing (RM) inhere?

(114.22)

प्रचारं च प्रार्थि च ग्रोडमेन च कण्डन ।
 व डेटि गंप्रकृत्यनि च निवृत्यनि चार्षित ॥

The very fact of the mind being free from attachment and aversion (univ), delight and sortow (univ) and such niter pairs of opposites proves that there is no ego identifying itself with the mind. Had the Universal Ego been tied with the mind, it would have heen possible for the latter to manifest evil propensities like attachment and aversion and so on. But the Universal Ego is never tied with the mind it simply lends motive power to the mind. All these distinguishing traits, too, persist only so long as the world continues to make six impression upon our mind, and these are ideal tails to be imhibed by the practicant. Hence it is that they find mention in the Satras.

The real position of a Gunatita can neither he understood nor described by anyone elses it can only he felt by those whn have attained that position. Should anyone apply the tests to himself with a view to satisfying himself whether he answers such tests or not, he should be understood as devnid of wisdom. The very fact that he is in search of distinguishing traits proves that he is tied to the body, that he still maintains his distinctiveness from Brahma, otherwise there can he nn separate investigator nor can he maintain a distinct position. Again, if he is keen on discovering such traits, whyshould he seek for them in a particular body alone? What prevents him from seeking for them in rocks and trees? The fact that be
